Shaving Cream War Leads to Hearing

by Deena McMurtry Editor

In the early morning hours of September 9 a shaving cream-baby powder war involving students at High Point College resulted in a temporary suspension of the Greek organizations Alpha Gamma Delta, Kappa Kelta, and Pi Kappa Alpha.

Recently a hearing was held to listen to the statements of those who witnessed the event, and to give the representatives of the three Greek organizations. Mike Lemmo, Pam McHone and Shari Campbell, a chance to air their views.

Conducting the hearing was Dean of Students Al Sistrunk and the Student Life Committee. It began at 2:30 p.m.

The focus of the hearing was the students violation of quiet and visitation hours, door damage in McCulloch dorm, an injury that Sherry Martin sustained to her nose and the panty theft that occurred in women's dorm.

Concerning the quiet hours policy Alexa Shlimmer, member of the Student Life Committee, asked, "Isn't it usually noisy after 12:00?" Mike Sigfried, a Resident Assistant in Millis agreed. Asked Professor Faiz Faizi, "If the event would have taken place before quiet hours would it have been alright?" No firm answer was

The issue of the door damage was cleared up when Ed Cannady of campus security reported that the damage was due to the heat. The doors swelled and were unable to be opened and closed properly.

As for the injured students, Martin submitted a complaint earlier in the week stating that she charged the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity for the damages to her nose. At the hearing, however, Martin submitted another letter dropping

Another issue raised at the hearing was concerning the question of authority. Resi-. Counselor Shaun Daughtery reported that he told Pam McHone and Mike Lemmo to keep the group

"Shaun wasn't attempting to quiet them and he's the Resident Counselor, why should I," said Lemmo at an interview following the hearing. According to Lemmo, Daughtery made no attempt to stop the group, but instead watched and took notes.

"I intended not to stop them, just to keep them out of Millis," said Daughtery.

Furthermore, Shari Camp-bell, president of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority asked why the three specific Greek organizations were suspended temporarily by Dean Sistrunk.

"No specific organizations were involved," said Mike Sigfried. He reported to have seen freshmen and independents as well as Greek members.

Peggy Draper, president of Tau Alpha sorority, stated that her members were involved but their sorority did not get temporarily suspend-

" I feel sorry for those guvs." said Draper referring to the representatives of the accused Greek organizations.

Campbell stressed that because a few Greek members participated, yet, they did not participate in a Greek func-Therefore, argued Shari, the organization should not be punished, the individual should.

Finally, the issue of the shaving cream/baby powder war as a tradition was brought up by Ray Hotz, vice-president of SGA. Hotz argued that the event has taken place as far back as 1950 as is written in fraternity minutes.

"No punitive action has taken place in the past," said

The hearing ended at ap-proximately 4:45 with Dean Sistrunk informing the group that he would have a decision in 24 hours.

Dean Sistrunk made the following decisions: (1) the three Greek organization were taken off temporary suspension, (2) they are to write a letter of apology to the students to be submitted to the Hi-Po, (3) they must develop a service project for the HPC community, (4) they must submit to Dean Sistrunk a statement agreeing to abide by all policies and, (4) the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity is placed on probation until May 12, 1986.

When Mike Lemmo was asked at the hearing by Professor Bill Cope If he expected that the events on September 9 would be carried so far, Lemmo replied, "I'm not surprised by anything at this school any

Martinson Takes Office as new HPC President

by Tony B. Baity Assistant Editor

Dr. Jacob C. Martinson, Jr., has officially taken office as High Point College's (HPC) sixth President.

Martinson, the former president of Brevard College (Brevard, N.C.), said he has been impressed with HPC since his inaugural exposure.

The faculty really impressed me during our first a school this size. However, it meeting. I found them to be an intellectual group representing various points of view. However, they were not the stereotypical, prevental types. Instead, they came across as being more interested in teaching than in research."

The interest in teaching please Martinson much.
"Next to the students, the faculty is the college's greatest asset. We have a first rate faculty who in turn have first rate priorities for the college," said Martinson, "I think that in the given situation the faculty has a better knowledge of what' HPC needs."

According to Martinson, the following are some of HPC's top priorities.

· To better the development of faculty members. "What this means is that faculty members will be allowed to attend seminars in order to better their teaching abilities. The college has a fund set up which provides the money for such endeavors."

· To better student development. "This means that HPC would become a little more selective in relationship to the students which are granted admission. Now, this is not to say that HPC should become a chool for the elite," clarified

Martinson. "I hope that by becoming more selective we can attract a few more of the so called 'pace setters'.'

· To establish a named scholarship program. "What we are hoping for is a scholarship similar in type to the Morehead scholarship at the North University of Carolina.'

. To increase HPC's endowment. "I think the college has a very healthy endowment for needs to be doubled in order to maximize the college's potential '

In contrast to these priorities Martinson said, "I don't have plans for any revolutionary changes. I don't believe in making changes just for the sake of changing. At the same time however, I see no reason why HPC can't con-tinue to improve in all areas."

Martinson, a native of Dunn County, Wisconsin, earned his undergraduate degrees in political science and English literature from Northwestern College and Huntington College, respectively. He received his master of divinity degree from Duke University Divinity School and his doctorate in theology from Vanderbilt University. Martinson has also completed postdoctoral studies at the Harvard University Institute for Educational Management.

Dr. Martinson has shown his concern for HPC by agreeing to answer any questions pertaining to the HPC community. Any student, faculty, or staff member who has a question they feel needs to be nswered may submit th

High Point Kindergarten?

There comes a time when enough of any one thing is enough, no matter how old or how young the participants.

On Thursday, September 12. HPC witnessed one of the biggest farces since the Salem witch trials, Al Sistrunk, HPC Dean of Students, asked the Student Life Committee to conduct an administrative hearing because of a shaving cream fight, panty raid and a broken nose.

First, it is unfortunate that a young lady was injured during the events which took place on Sept. 12. However, in her own written statement, the young lady admitted that she ran into another young lady which caused her nose to be broken. True, she may not have ran into her friend if there had not been a lot of yelling and screaming taking place. But by tne same token, you cannot hold the people doing the yelling and screaming responsible for the young lady's misfortune. No, on second thought, maybe the yelling and screaming fans at HPC baseball, basketball, soccer and volleyball games are responsible for deciding which team wins and which team loses.

As for the panty raid, if any person entered a young ladies room and took her underwear without her permission that person needs to be disciplined.

But to this point in time not one young lady has filed charges because her panties were taken. So what is the big deal? Maybe Dean Sistrunk just needed to check out the Student Life Committee's meeting process.

This leaves us with the question of the shaving cream fight. Sure, it took place after quiet hours had taken effect. But on any given night there is going to be some degree of noise after quiet hours. It also is a fact that on this particular night the noise was due to a much larger group of students than is usually responsible for such a disturbance. However, it was an event which promoted good, clean (messy only in that the hall and yard of Millis had to be cleaned up) fun. Once again, what is the big deal?

Finally, it should be pointed out that Dean Sistrunk was concerned about some of students' actions. He also (as he clearly stated during the Student Life Committee hearing) was concerned about the image of the Greek organizations. Well, that is great except that he appeared to be concerned about the action of only one person, Mike Lemmo. Yes, Lemmo is President of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity and yes he did take part in the which However, that's not the point. The point is that Dean Sistrunk and Mike Lemmo seem to have had a personal war going on for some time. And because of this personal war Sistrunk attempted to place the burden of the group's action on a select number of people, specifically Mike Lemmo.

Please. What is next for HPC? I've got an idea. Since the students are going to be treated like children why don't we change the name from High Point College to High Point Kindergarten. That way Dean Sistrunk can paddle all of the children who cut up while he's not watching.

Editorial

To improve changes must be made. As you will see by skimming through this issue of the Hi-Po changes have been made since the last issue in an attempt to make the publication better than ever! The look and the contents have changed, but the objectives are still the same: to serve the entire population at High Point College - day and night students, faculty and staff members - and to provide a type of forum for the exchange of information and ideas.

To begin with, our feature section will focus on particular students, faculty and staff members. Also, articles will concentrate on important functions on campus as well as historical issues in High Point College's past.

On the editorial page of the Hi-Po will include a guest opinion column where faculty can themselves. If students feel the need to speak out on an issue they can do so in the "Up Front" section of the editorial

"Says the Prez" tive their opinions and effort

No, this headline is not a "Says Ted" has graduated to "Says the Prez." This column has been designed to keep the students, faculty, and administrative staff aprised of the activities of the Student Government Association (SGA).

This year the SGA will be concentrating on two new areas of involvement: (1) activity encouraging more students in SGA decisionmaking and activities and (2) take leadership roles in ac-

SGA's first objective of encouraging more students to be active in their own governance sounds like the stock slogan of every student administration. However, this year we're only not echoing that age-old promise but doing something about it.

First, SGA will be meeting once a week instead of bimonthly to give students a better chance to contact their representatives. Twice month SGA will have its regular "business meeting" complete with gavel, formaliand Robert's Rule of Order, (this sort of experience is enough to scare any freshman or unsuspecting upperclassman away for good). As a relief to those often motionmuddled meetings, the opposite Wednesday will be reserved for informal meetings where students will be invited to express their ideas and criticism. The SGA will be soliciting all students to come to these informal meetings and in the areas of campus food. safety, student budgeting, legislation, rating procedures, and other pertinent areas.

The purpose for these informal meetings is twofold. First, to give those students who are not voting members of SGA a chance to have an impact on their campus. And secondly, to broaden the talent and resource base upon which the SGA can draw for its work-

The second objective that SGA is pursuing is the taking on of leadership in areas where SGA has not been previously involved. An SGA lecture series has already been established and funded for the 1985-86 academic year. This fall's lecture headliner will be on October 30 in the Memorial Auditorium. The program is titled "Hitlerism and the Holocaust" and involves two speakers - Afous Heck, a once high-ranking leader of the hitler youth, and Helen Waterford, a jew who lived through the horrors of the Holocaust and Auschwitz, To say the least, the program is fascinating and educational. The program is headed by Ray Hote, SGA Vice-President, who needs some assistance. SGA is also presently planning a leadership retreat for HPC hoping to take 40 students and 10 faculty/staff members for a weekend. The date and location are to be announced. Phil Key, SGA Treasurer, is chair of the planning committee for this event. Anyone who would like to help is encouraged to contact Phil

-This year the SGA sincerely hopes to meet all the students' needs brought to its attention. I've got a million other things I'd like to say but I'm afraid I'm already late to another SGA reponsibility. Take care all and ride that purple wave.

WWIH Closed, For Now

by Craig Van Steenburgh

The only sounds that will be heard on High Point College's WVHH radio channel this semester will be the sounds of static. No, this doesn't mean that WWIH will be broadcasting a Simon and Garfunkel special. What this does mean is that WWIH will not be broadcasting a nything at all this semester.

WWIH is not going to be operating during the fall semester so that the station can be relocated. The decision to move the station from its present location in Roberts Hall came after the station's new advisor, Dr. Chilcoat, requested that the station be closed. Besides relocating the station, Chilcoat wants to reorganize and improve the way the radio station is run.

One major change is that there are going to be academic classes directly involving the station. In the past the only class that dealt with the radio station was the radio protection. One new class for the radio station will be an "audio production" class, Chilcoat said. This class will provide the station with material that can be put on the air.

A constant flow of student produced programs such as interiews, debates, and even some short stories would be available to the station. Dean Sistrunk said that the station willbe used as a classroom and become an "academic unit" of High Point College's curriculum.

The idea to move the station came last year, but the location had not been decided upon until recently. Dean Sistrunk said that the station must be moved out of Roberts Hall and in no way will operate again in the tower. According to Dr. Chilcoat, the new station is to be in Cooke Hall, either in the attic or in the room where the CAEP office is now.

"The station will be much easier to govern if it is in Cooke Hall," Chilcoat said.

While the station is off the air, Chilcoat said he will work on obtaining a 100-watt license to replace the 10-watt license now in effect. This has been a goal for the radio station since 1981. Chilcoat hopes the station can reopen in its new location by the start of the spring semester.

Plans Continue For New Dorm

by Tony B. Baity

Plans for the construction of a new resident hall are continuing, said HPC Dean of Students Al Sistrunk.

"Basically there have been to changes made to ur (the College's) original plan," said Sistrunk. "First, the proposed opening date has been moved from the fall semester of 1986 to, at the very earliest, the fall semester of 1987. Also, the architectural design for the new building has been determined."

"The new resident hall will have a design similar to the existing buildings which face Montlieu Avenue," Sistrunk said

domitory and Montlieu Avenue. The plan also calls for a minimum of 80 double occupant rooms. Every two rooms will contain an interlocking bathroom. Each room will contain a sink, and the door to each room will be offset in the interior corridor in order to reduce the noise within each room. There also will be rooms equipped for the physically handicapped.

The Board of Trustees have

The Board of Trustees have approved an expenditure of up to $2.4 million for the building of the new resident hall.

Sistrunk also said, "The future of the existing Mc-Culloch dorm is somewhat in the air at the present moment. We don't know if it will be demolished or if we will renovate it. Right now, it is just hard to say for certain."

Hodge Podge

by Marion Hodge

My old buddy Art who teaches at Piltdown College came to High Point just before the semester started, to get, as he said, "a weight off his soul."

"We got some people over there," he said in the hillbilly he drops into whenever there's nobody from New Jersey around, "we got some people walking down the halls over there who you can't tell if they're alive or just the victims of monentum.

I reminded him of what Randall Jarrell said about some of his colleagues at UNC-G -- "that there were some trees in Greensboro that had greater intelligence."

"Yeah," Art said morosely, "I reckon it's the same everywhere. And it don't matter how old they are. Why, the Pittdown Chronic (that's their school newspaper) reported the other day that two sophomores were arrested for DWA—Driving While Asphixated."

"Uh huh," I said, 'cause I try to accentuate the positive, 'but you can't always expect sophomores to be alive. They have important things to do."

But he was belabored.

"And we got sosh prof who everytime he finds himself on the edge of destinction he manages to claw his way back to mediocrity."

At that remark a backhoe rolled up onto my soul. I got scared—and defensive. That's not the way it is with me, I thought. I know I'm breathing at the staff the time I'm in the classroom.

Ivancie Concerned About Students

by Deena McMurtry

The students, the social life and the policies at High Point College are concerns stressed by a politically minded freshman from Portland, Oregon, Peter Ivancie.

At a recent Student Government meeting I Vancie gave a speech in which he pointed out his background experience in politics and announced that he had plans to run for Freshman class president. Recently, however, I vancie has decided to serve as spokesperson for Freshman class president candidate, Julie Wilson. Instead, Junice will focus much of his attention on starting a college republicans organization on campus.

"I feel that I have something to contribute to this college," said Ivancie.

Because his father was once the mayor of Portland, Ivancie grew up surrounded by an air of politics. He was a member of an organization called Young Americans For Freedom (YAFF) and also worked for the Reagan-Bush press corp in the Republican National Convention in Dallas.

As a spokesperson for Wilson, Ivancie expressed their ideas. "We like to give the freshmen class a prominant position on campus." said Ivancie in a recent interview. They plan to achieve this goal by expressing the needs and wants of the freshman . class and allowing input from the students.

"The key for the freshman class, or any other class for that matter, is to study, socialize and have fun," said Ivancie. "One hundred percent of life is human interaction. If we eliminate that we are depriving students of a basic need."

Another issue of concern is Another issue of concern is student's rights.

"As a student's room is his or her own private space the what he or she does in that room is private," said Ivancie. He explained that he felt if any restrictions are put on that privacy then they are in violation of the student's rights.

"Of course, I believe in safety on campus, but I don't believe in an overbearing scurrity system," said I vancie. To achieve the unity and coherence at HPC I vartice believes there must be a "confrontation role between student and faculty before there is a cooperative role."

"One concern is that the administration must be responsive to the student body," said lyancie.

New Faculty Variety to

by Lisa Mann Staff Writer

If their classes are as interesting as their interviews, High Point College has gained some excellent faculty members. Each teacher's interests and background make them both exciting and respectable.

Two new faculty members have joined the Department of English.

Dr. Mark Chilcoat of Greensboro is teaching media communications. He enjoys reading, community acting, camping, canoeing, traveling, and woodcarving. On weekends, he likes to watch and research films with his wife and friends. His favorite actor is Humphrey Bogart because "he was an absolute representative of the illusional film...he was his character."

Chilcoat earned a Ph.D. degree in telecommunications from Ohio University, an undergraduate degree in social studies education from the University of Tennessee, and a master's degree in educational administration from UNC-Chapel Hill. He lectured at UNC-Greensboro in the Division of Broadcasting and Cinema.

A producer and director of several informational films, Chilcoat is a member of the International Television Association.

Dr. Gary McConnell is teaching literature and writing courses. He enjoys sports, especially basketball and softball. He is also interested in Russian literature, and reading about the American depression. McConnell thinks "everyone should ride a rollercoaster at eight o'clock every morning so anything can be faced during the day."

McConnell was a teaching assistant in the UNC-Chapel Hill English Department, where he received his Ph.D. and master's degrees. He holds a bachelor's degree from Wake Forest University.

degree from Wake Forest University.
In 1983, McConnell was awarded a Pogue Fellowship for research at Stanford University.

Three new faculty members have been appointed to the Department of Human Resources.

Dr. Ronald G. Ramke, the new department chairman, enjoys scuba and cave diving. He also enjoys chartering a 45 foot sailboat for two or three weeks during the summer and exploring the Caribbean.

Ramke received his Ph.D. and M.A. degrees from Louisiana State, his master of divinity degree from Duke, and his B.A. from Union College. Specializing in sociology and anthropology, he taught at the University of Maryland (European Division), the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg, and Louisiana State University.

Ramke is a member of the American Sociological Association, and several other professional organizations.

Dr. Catherine Hackett Blumer, who is teaching psychology courses, likes camping, needlepoint, antique hunting, and especially horseback riding.

Blumer was an intructor at Ohio University, where she had received her doctorate and master's degrees. She earned a B.A. degree from Nazareth College of Rochester. Her husband is also involved with psychology.

Blumer thinks larger schools are more interested in research than teaching students, and therefore prefers smaller institutions such as High Point College. Blumer became interested in her field after taking several psychology courses. She enjoyed working with rats and was interviewed on television for teaching one of her rats to play basketball in a Skinner Box.

Dr. Dee Allen Goedeke is the director of human relations studies. He enjoys jogging, tennis, and painting still life. He likes working with college level students and the commitment High Point College has toward its faculty and students.

Goedeke comes from Columbia, Missouri where he earned his Ph.D. in child and family development from the University of Missouri. He also received his master's degree in education and bachelor's degree in agriculture from Missouri. Goedeke has taught at the University of Missouri and Central Missouri State University.

Goedeke has several years of experience in the State 4-H Program.

The education department has also received a new faculty member.

Dr. Hooshang Bagheri is teaching courses in middle grades education. His talents range from Ballroom Dancing to table tennis, but he believes his specialty is sharing his experiences. Bagheri, who has lived in seven different countries, thinks America is the most beautiful country, but his heart remains in Iran where he was born.

Holding a Ph.D. degree in early childhood education from the University of Oregon, Bagheri also earned a master's degree in elementary educationcurriculum and instruction and a bachelor's degree in recreation and park management from Oregon. He has served as associate professor of education at Averett College in Danville, Virginia, and has taught at Elizabethtown College in Pennsylvania, Syracuse University, Southern Oregon State College, and the University of Oregon.

Bagheri is a member of numerous professional organizations and honorary societies.

Intramural Program Underway

by Joe Hutchins Hi-Po Sports Writer

Coach Bob Davidson, head of the intramural program this year at High Point College, expects another good year of participation and competition in the program.

Davidson has a very good student staff working under him, headed by Randy Foster representing the men, and Ana Lopez representing the women. Assisting Foster and Lopez are: Bill Kimmel, Keny Farris, Joe Crupi, James Hughes, Allan Watts, Marie Giofre, and Andrea Simpson.

The intramural season will begin in early September ending in late April, with a break at Christmas. All Fall sports should be completed by Christmas break. The intramural schedule for the women is as follows: tennis is as follows: tennis (September), volleyball (October), and track and field (October).

Other women's intramural sports include, badminton (December), basketball and bowling (January), and soft-ball (March). The Intramural schedule for the men is essentially the same except for a few changes. Ultimate frisbee and tennis begin in early September, followed by socret, and track and field in October. Volleyball begins in November followed by basketball and bowling in January, and closing with softball in late April.

The intramural program is ticipating in the intramural based on a cummulative point program than there are males.

total for both the men and the women. The total points of each team are recorded throughout each activity and the team with the most cummulative points for the year is the overall champion. Last year an independent team was the overall champion. Team X won the men's league. The women's league ws won by Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

Coach Davidson believes the intramural program this year will be very strong because he has a good staff working under him.

Anna Lopez was very active in women's intramurals last year and Randy Foster was heavily involved in the intramural program at Brevard College before he transferred to High Point College.

When asked what sport he believed was the most popular among the intramural program participants, Coach Davidson said, "Basketball, without a doubt." Davidson feels there is an excellent number of student participating in the intramural program at High Point College. He feels there is at least one-half of the student body that participates in at least one activity throughout the course of the year. However, Davidson feels that the involvement of the students in intramurals could always be improved, especially by the females. There is a significantly less number of females participating in the intramural

Soccer Team Looking To National Tournament

by J.T. Turner

After winning three of its first four games, the HPC Soccer team looks to be on the way to reaching its goals of 1985.

Head Coach Woody Gibson said his first goal is to have the team "play up to its ability every time it goes on to the field." Then he added that the long run goals would be "to win the Carolinas Conference title, the District 26 playoffs and go to the national tournament."

Even with the loss of two senior all-Americans the team is stronger than last year. The 22-man roster sports 11 returning players as well as 11 freshmen, with four of the freshmen, breaking into the starting lineup.

Last year's team finished 13-6-2, was fourth in the nation in scoring and at one time was ranked 17 in the country.

Junior Sal Schavone, of Medford, MA. is back in goal for his third year and has recorded 3 shutouts so far this year. Only two time NCAA Division III champion UNC- Greensboro has scored against

The defense is lead by seniors Phil Valente (Miami, FL.) and Stu Shilling (Freehold, NJ.) sophomore Danny Hogue (Deland, FL.) and freshman Clive Sklers (Toronto, Canada).

Starting midfielders are Joe Crupi (Randolph, NJ.) and freshman Tony Nugent (Dublin, Ireland). Kevin Noon, a junior, and Mike Oser, a freshman, have been splitting time at the third halfback spot.

The offense is lead by Junior stricker Pete Cockburn (Toronto, Canada) and sophomore right wing Gary Hewett (Alexandria, VA.), Rusty Lawter, also of Alexandria, Va. and Mark Hoder, Olney, MD. have been alternating at left wing.

Coach Gibson, when commenting on the bench strength, said "1980 was the last year we had this much depth." Adding that the freshman are working very hard and still learning that college soccer is more physical than high school, but they've come a long way already." HPC opened the season with a 5-0 victory over Warren Wilson College Sept. 4. Shilling lead the offense with 2 goals. Hewett, freshman Steve Cookman (Gilford, NH.) and sophomore Steve Maurer (California, MD.) had one goal each.

The next day HPC beat Mars Hill College 2-0. Hewett and Nugent each scored one goal.

Then HPC ran into the always tough UNC-G team. Tony Nugent scored High Point's only goal in the 2-1 loss.

On Sept. 10 HPC got back on the winning track with a 5-0 defeat of Wingate College, in the first conference game of the year. Shilling, Nugent and Hewett each scored once and are tied for the team lead in goals with three. Cockburn and Valente each scored their first goals of the year during the game.

High Point will be at home Saturday against Coker College starting at 2:00 p.m. Then HPC will play at home again on Sept. 24 against Pembroke State College starting at 3:30 p.m.

Golf Team Finishes 11th

The HPC Golf team finished 11 out of a field of 24 in the Aubberty Apple Sr. Collegent Golf Tournament.

John Harris finished third overall with a 145, one-overpar. Harris shot 73 the first day and 72 the second day.

As a team HPC shot 317 the first day, and 307 the second. On the first day HPC teed off last and got caught by darkness. This forced HPC to being plan the next day at 6:30 a.m. The Panthers had to finish their first round before starting the second round of play.

Other members of the HPC golf team to play in the tournament were Matt Kohn, Jim Anderson, Scott Pollack, Jeff Namath, and Ron Hall.

Field Hockey Team Hopeful

Co-captain Shari Campbell guards ball.

Even though there are just 13 players on the roster, the HPC Field Hockey team hopes to improve on last year's 9-8-2 record.

Coach Kitty Steele had hoped for about 20 players this season but feels that the ones she has can do the job as long as no serious injuries occur.

Several of last year's players decided to sit out this year and concentrate on their classes.

However, Coach Steele was very pleased with the level of play during the preseason, stating that, "veerybody has a good attitude and is working hard." She also said that the five freshmen on the team are highly skilled and that with more play along side the returning players, "the experience will jell them to become a better team."

Shari Radwanski, of Neptune, N.J., leads the group of freshmen. An excellent stick handler with good field sense, Shari is the sister of Ed Radwanski, the former UNC-G All-American soccer player.

Diane Del Rossi, of Glassboro, N.J., will be in goal for HPC. The freshman has put put strong performances so far and should only improve with experience.

The team, however, will be lead by 3 seniors; co-captain Shari Campbell, (Virginia Beach, Va.) co-captain Carol Ann Williams, (Gloucester Point, Va.), and Collen Farrell (Seaford, Long Island, NY.).

Williams, a forward and midfielder, has been selected to play in the national tournament (played in California) the past two years. Campbell and Farrell are both fullbacks in their fourth and third seasons respectively.

HPC plays Duke University Sept. 20. starting at 4 p.m.

Trodgon 'Positive' About New Season

by Tim Winters Hi-Po Sports Writer

The Lady Panthers' volleyball team will have a new look this season in the person of rookie head coach, Debbie Trogdon, who replaced Nancy Little when she retired last May.

Miss Trogdon comes to High Point with a master's degree in Physical Education from the University of North Carolina-Greensboro. She is a very competitive runner with the hopes of running in the 1988 Summer Olympics. Coach Trogdon brings with her ten years of coaching experience, and a very competitive attitude. She exudes a youthful confidence which seems contagious and which appears to have spilled over to her team.

Coach Trodgon described this year's team as having a "very positive attitude." She explained that they have adjusted well to the coaching changes, and are looking forward to the upcoming season. Trogdon said she is looking for "complete dedication" from all of her players. She feels that she can bring High Point back into national contention. She also said that the team had "the potential to make it all the way to the finals."

The potential that Coach Trodgon is talking about is her returning players which include Cynthia Ismael, Anne Lopez, Kim Maness, and Anne Meyers. Ismael, a senior from Bolivia, and a member of the Bolivian National team has been competing in volleyball since she was eight_years old. Teammate Anne Lopez has also played volleyball since she was eight. Ismael and Lopez will supply the backbone for the team through their leadership and experience.

The Lady Panthers also hope to strengthen their defense this year. In order to do so, they have added some height to their blocking game. Donna Lily, a sophomore, will be the middle hitter leading a very strong middle attack. Net play also should improve this season.

Coach Trodgon is well aware that the conference is very strong. But she feels that the entire conference is well balanced, yet admits that Guilford is the team to beat. Miss Trogdon emphasized that Guilford is "very well coached," and their players "execute their skills perfectly." However, the Lady Panthers have one advantage, its depth. And this year, depth could be another key to the team's success.

This year's volleyball season should prove to be very exciting for the Lady Panthers of High Point. Coach Trogdon has instilled a very positive attitude and the players are learning and adjusting to their new coach. Also, there is a sense of confidence and a feeling of team unity. A promising season appears to be in the future. As for new coach on the block, her enthusiasm is self-evident, "love being here" was how she put it. Coach, the feeling is

by Charles Hinman Hi-Po Sports Writer

High Point College's head basketball coach Jerry Steele recently announced the signing of five athletes, Tony Bolden, Jeff Johnson, Roy Smith, Willie Walker, and Chris Windlan.

Tony Bolden, a 6-3 guard out of Reidsville High School was an All-Conference performer the past two seasons. The 190-pound Bolden averaged 18 points, four rebounds, and five assists, per game while leading his team to a 24-4 record and the Mid-State 3-A regular season and tournament championships.

Jeff Johnson, a transfer from St. Paul's College in Lawrenceville, Va., will not be eligible to play until the 1986-87 season. However, he does have two years of eligibility remaining which pleases Coach Steele.

Roy Smith is a 6-7 transfer forward from East Carolina University. He is a junior who will have two years of eligibility remaining.

"I think Roy is a heck of an athlete," commented Steele. "He will be a major addition to our program."

A 6-5 guard-forward, Willie Walker of Charlotte is a graduate of Garinger High School where he was a three year starter. Willie, the brother of Odell Walker, an All-Conference and All-District 26 selection from HPC.

When asked of Willie Walkers' ability Steele replied, "He has played just about every position in basketball and will be a good player for us. He is capable of doing so many things."

Chris Windlan is a 6-2, 180 guard from Good Counsel High School in Wheaton, Maryland. A three year starter, Windlan averaged 23.6 points per game while shooting 57 percent from the field and 82 percent from the foul line.

Martinson Urges Cooperation

by Anthony Billings Staff Writer

High Point College formally began it's 61st academic year on August 29 with a convocation ceremony in the Memorial Auditorium.

High Point City Mayor Judy Mendenhall welcomed the students to the community. Dr. Jacob C. Martinson, Jr., the new president of HPC, officially welcomed the freshman class, referring to his role as "the freshman President addressing the freshman class."

In his welcoming address, Martinson listed guidelines for freshmen to follow for success at High Point College, He urged that cooperation was one of the main factors on a campus this size. "Cooperation is important to every realm of life, but in the enterprise of extending educational development. there is no more valuable quality," he said. Martinson quoted the poet John Donne in addressing student in-dependence, "No man is an island.

Martinson said that there were more important things than winning. Such things were "the making of new friends; the ability to get along; being a good loser; learning how to live with others; developing goals and purposes." He said that sometimes winning wasn't winning at all. "If we got everything we thought we wanted, we'd be in trouble," he said.

Another point Dr. Martinson stressed was that we should not be afraid of failure. We should not decline to take a class or try something new for fear that we might fail. He urged that we should at least try. If we did fail, we could learn from our failures, "Don't be afraid of the tough courses." Martinson said.

In his conclusion, Martinson advised freshmen to leave High Point College a better place than they found it. "If we cannot contribute in any other way, let's plant a tree...or paint a door, or fix a hinge," he said. Martinson also instructed the freshmen to make the same kind of contribution to the world. "Write a book, run for office, raise a family, teach a child, leave the world a better place than you found it."

Officials Search Dorm Room

Anthony Billings

Staff Writer

Two students say college officials acted unethically as they searched McCulloch Hall for illegal drugs on Monday, Sept.

Paul Valerga, a freshman from Seaford, N.Y., and John Maguire, a freshman from Vienna, Virginia, say the college violated the principle of probable cause when officials searched their room. Valerga said the only reasons authorities had for the search of his room was that someone had named him as a drug user and that he associated with Scott Smith. No illegal substances were found in their room.

Smith, a freshman from Pitman, N.J., was arrested after a search of his room and charged by High Point police with possession of drug paraphernalia.

Dean of Students Asbert Sistrunk said both Smith and Valerga had been named in various reports by students living in the same area of Mc-Culloch Hall.

Vandalism in Campus (

Deena McMurtry

A vandausur and an attempted burglary incident were reported on the evening of September 25 by High Point College student, Michael Martin, according to campus security.

Martin spotted two juveniles in the campus center and began chasing them when they started running. Martin lost sight of the two juveniles, but reported them immediately to campus security. The two were then spotted and apprehended by police at the HPC stadium.

George Foose, photographer, reported that his photography equipment had been vandalized.

According to the police report, the bookstore door had been badly pried, but there was apparently no entry. About $75.00 worth of damage was done to the book-

Campus Safety Director Ed Cannady said, "There are no student narcs on campus. No student had anything to do with the building of this case."

After the search of his room, Valerga said, he was instructed not to "touch or go near" a certain unnamed student.

During the search of Smith's room, Valerga said, Sistrunk told Valerga in Lead him to his room. Sistrunk asked to search Valerga's room. Valerga said he told Sistrunk and Campus Safety officers to "search anything you want to." Valerga said he gave permisison for officials to search only his belongings.

"I had to give them permission to search my room because of some document we were forced to sign at the beginning of the semester. If I hadn't signed it, I wouldn't have been allowed to live on campus," Valerga said.

Maguire said he returned to the room he shares with Valerga to find officials searching his belongings without his consent. Maguire said Sistrunk told him he had the right to be present, although he was not the subject of the search. "Sistrunk didn't seem very polite at all. His actions were more like those of a jerk than a school administrator," Maguire said.

Valerga said, "I think these types of searches are illegal and against my constitutional rights. I think an inquiry should be made concerning the legality of this type of unwarranted abuse."

Sistrunk said later in an interview that students are required to sign an agreement that gives college officials the right to search any room on campus for safety, health, and/or maintenance reasons. After a student signs this agreement, Sistrunk said, college officials are not required to get permission from the student to search the student's Valerga said that after he made a derogatory remark about the college, he was given a week to decide whether he wanted to stay or leave. Sistrunk said he made it clear to Valerga that he could withdraw from the college at any time, and he said he told Valerga he should "calm down or face disciplinary action."

store door. An estimated $495.00 worth of damage was done to Foose's photography equipment.

"By Martin being alert and telling us quickly was the only way that police apprehended the juveniles," said Ed Cannady, HPC director of public safety.

The juveniles were charged with burglary and vandalism and turned over to their parents. They will be tried in juvenile court.

HPC Student Arrested

Anthony Billings

A High Point College student was arrested last week and charged with possessing drug paraphernalia, according to police records.

Scott Smith, a freshman from Pitman, N.J., was taken into custody Monday, Sept. 23, after college officials and High Police officers found some 17 items allegedly related to drug use in Smith's MeCulloch Hall room.

Confiscated from Smith's room were an undisclosed number of marijuana seeds, three pipes, three packs of cigarette rolling paper, two scales allegedly used to weight drugs, two small screens allegedly used to sift impurities out of marijuana, two "roaches," and a box and gym bag in which these items were found.

Also found was evidence that two women who are not HPC students had been living in Smith's room.

Smith was released from jail on Wednesday, Sept. 25. His bond had been set at $500.

Rock and roll music is finally becoming an accepted art form in today's society. Can you believe it? I can't!

Just think about this - in a 16-hour time span, an estimated two billion people watched the Live Aid concerts and in the process raised maybe as much as $60 million for the Ethiopian famine relief fund.

Come on, you're kidding, right? You can't mean that people with earrings in parts of their body other than their ears actually contributed something beneficial to society, can you?

Well, at least tell me that

Live Aid: True Art?

none of the guy! were wearing earrings. Please say it can't be true.

Sorry, but the fact is that almost every one of the guys had an earring dangling from some part of his anatomy. Yes, even Bob Dylan was sporting a new ear piece as he sang with Keith Richards and Ronnie Wood.

Wait a minute. Keith Richards and Ronnie Wood performed on live television. Yes, as did Madonna, the "boy toy" of Penthouse and Playboy; Phil Collins; Darvl Hall and John Oates; Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young; the Who; Paul McCartney; Elton John; Wham!: U2: David

Bowie; Huey Lewls ahd the News; Led Zepplin and legends Robert Plant and Jimmy Page; sleazy Mick Jagger and Tina Turner. Not bad considering that up until now the Live Aid concert only a small portion of society actually considered these performers to be legitimate Legitimate artists? Please! How can a man (I suppose man is the correct term) who allows a leather clad woman to sit on his knee while he screams into a microphone be considered an artist? I mean be real. Plus, how can a man with an earring be a good example for society? Just by wearing an earring he is revolting against society and that's wrong is it not? What gives him the right to revolt against social traditions? Who does he think he is anyway, God?

And what about the man who planned the Live Aid concerts, Bob Geldof? Please. Here is a man who sings (or screams) for a group of Boomtown Rats, being nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize. Be still my Mother Teresa heart. How can such a thing happen? Where have our cultural values gone? Probably to Ethiopia in a bank book.

We are letting these strangely dressed people overrun our social tolerance. Sure, Live Aid raised almost $60 million but does Bob Geldof deserve the Nobel Peace Prize? Remember, this is the same man who Bruce Springsteen couldn't write a song as good as The Boomtown Rats "Rat Trap."

After a slap like that, is American society going to ac-Bob Geldof. "legitimate artists" and their social changes? Who knows? I mean if society will support rock music and its causes, it may do anything - even nominate a "legitimate artist" for the Nobel Peace Prize.

Letter to the Editor

Library Policemen!

To The Editor:

Several recent occurrences in the Smith Library need to be brought to the attention of the College Community. The first is the implementation of a policy of checking all books and other documents to make certain that library materials are being properly checked out by people who are entitled to borrow library materials.

This practice, common in college libraries today, was made necessary by last year's losses. During the summer members of the library staff calculated that nearly 50% of all new issues of periodicals received during the 1984-85 academic year were stolen. Hundreds of books were also taken from the Smith Library during the same period. The Library staff regrets the need to impose this policy. However, library materials need to be safeguarded for the use of all members of the College community. The new electronic security system and permanent, evening and weekend supervisors have been added to the library for this reason.

On two recent evenings, small groups of students have created disturbances in the library that have made it impossible for others to study. In the course of these disturbances loud, foul and abusive language was used and a number of magazines and books were damaged.

People who work in libraries don't want to be policemen. They view their work as providing a valuable and necessary service. The primary function of the library is to provide a quality environment for study and a rich supply of materials worth studying. Checking books and bookbags, asking disruptive students to leave the building, is in the view of the library staff, necessary to ensure that the Smith Library performs its function for the good of the College community.

Speaking personally, I will welcome advice, complaints, comments and suggestions about these matters or any others that might improve library services.

Tom Gaughan Director of Library Services

Martinson's Response to:

I would like our students to be both genteel and competent, reverend and scholarly, who will promote a society which is both liberated and disciplined.

Beyond this, I like students with real energy and zest who want to use the resources of High Point College to the very fullest. Whether students get "C's" or "A's" is really not the point. Students ought to be competitive; they ought to be bright; they ought to be willing to work hard.

Some students are massively self-indulgent in many, many areas and I'm not sure that's very interesting. Students need to be concerned for others on the campus like this and everywhere. We all need to think beyond ourselves. Roughly, 80 to 90% of all students today would place their own personal happiness very near the top on any scale of values. That's high, and that is not all bad. But, how does one achieve personal happiness? I maintain that personal happiness is very illusive. The more one seeks it, the more frustrated one becomes. Happiness comes as a by-product of a higher commitment.

What Are The Ideal Characteristics of Model Student?

To me, the highest form of personal happiness is to place a smile on someone elses face. That may not be too profound, but it works.

Percentage wise, we have as nany model students here at High Point College as there are anywhere. I am extremely proud of the students I see.

Keith Hansen

Can you imagine a computer science teacher who likes sky diffus, or an accounting teacher who reads Greek tragedies, or a physical education teacher who collects antique furniture? If so, you can imagine the wide variety of interests and hobbies of five new High Point College faculty members.

Dr. Vagn Keith Hansen has been named chairman of the Department of History, Political Science, and Geography. Besides teaching, he enjoys playing with his six-year old son and traveling. He also likes watching and observing politics, an interest he has had since his childhood. He is looking forward to learning more about North Carolina politics.

Hansen was professor of political science and chairman of the Division of Social Sciences at Dela State University in Mississip. Previously he was assistant professor of history and political science at Virginia Military Institute. Hansen earned his Ph.D. degree in foreign affairs from the University of Virginia. He received a bachelor's degree in political science from Tuland

Hansen came to HPC with an interest in teaching at a liberal arts college. He likes the "commitment to progress" the college

Hansen replaces Dr. Carl Wheeless, who retired as department chairman

Dr. Jennie McGuire, who is teaching history classes, enjoys researching historical topics and writing about her experiences during graduate school. Her first teaching experience was voluntary work with handicapped teenagers, whom she taught needle-point and French. "Working with the handicapped gave me a sense of stability to my own life. I knew they could not have the same opportunities as I, so I realized my debt to God."

McGuire recently earned her doctorate at the University of South Carolina, where she was a teaching assistant in the history department. She earned her bachelor's degree at UNC-Asheville and her master's degree at USC. She has taught secondary social studies and French in Asheville public sechools.

McGuire appreciates the spiritual atmosphere at the college. "People are interested in what happens to other people."

McGuire is teaching history courses for Dr. Everard Smith, who has been awarded a one-year post-doctoral fellowship at Chapel Hill.

Paul Dane, chairman of the Department of Computer Science, has enjoyed auto racing for 20 years. Although he has not raced for sometime, he owns a Trans Am designed for racing and enjoys driving around the tracks. He has enjoyed sky diving for 22 years. "I like the feeling of awareness. The universe is you, and you are the universe."

Dane is a graduate of Worcester State College with a bachelor's degree in business management and a master's in computer science. He also holds an accounting degree from the University of Maryland. He has been certified in data processing by the Data Processing Management Association and in systems programming by the Association for Computer Machinery. Dane has been chairman of the computer systems management department at Johnson and Wales. Prior to joining that faculty he taught at Worcester State College, Quinsigamund Community College.

Aubrey Highfill, a certified public accountant, is an associate professor of business and accounting. Highfill's "first love" is teaching, but he also likes the arts, especially reading American novels and Greek tragedies, and playing tennis. He enjoy sitting historical parts of the United States with his wife. "Il enjoy looking back on historical times, seeing how this country got started, wondering what people are thinking as they realized what they had to overcome as they settled on this land."

Highfill has taught as an adjunct instructor of several years in HPC's Continuing Adult Education Program, both on the HPC campus and in Winston-Salem. As a CPA, he has worked with a number of accounting firms in the Triad. Highfill graduated from the University of Alabama with a M.B. A. degree and earned his undergraduate degree in management from Wake Forest Debbie Trogdon is teaching physical education classes and coaching basketball and volleyball. She enjoys all water sports and running. She also enjoys watching the olympics. Although most of Trodgon's hobbies center around sports, she enjoys oil painting and collecting antique furniture.

High Point College is Trogdon's first college teaching experience. She has always wanted to teach college level for the experience. "You want to be able to use what you learned in college, which is hard to do with high school students."

Trogdon has taught and coached at Hugh M. Cummings High School in Burlington and Douglas Byrd High School in Fayette-ville. She has also been a teaching assistant at HPC. Trogdon received her bachelor's degree in chemistry from Western Carolina and her master's degree in exercise physiology from UNC-Greensboro. In about a year she would like to attend school for her doctorate degree.

Trogdon majored in her field because she enjoyed the sciences. Sports medicine, physiology, and anatomy are her favorite topics.

the Hi-Po Newspaper staff would like to welcome these new faculty members and wish them success at High Point College.

Steele wins 100th; 3-0 over Catawba

SALISBURY-Carol Ann Williams, Sharon Radwanski and Heather Hughes led the Lady Panthers to a 3-0 victory over Catawba College.

It was the second win of the year for High Point and the 100th career victory for Coach Kitty Steele and Assistant Coach Leslie Clark. Steele and Clark have been coaching field hockey at HPC since 1976.

"It's just great, Leslie told me at the beginning of the season that we needed 2 (wins), " commented Steele. "I was just happy the girls played so well, that is what really pleased us."

Steele and Clark have been working together since Clark was a senior at UNC-Greensboro. Clark was an intern-assistant coach at Guilford College where Steele coached the hockey team. When Steele came to High Point she brought Clark with her. Since then, HPC's record ie 100.40.0

Heather Huges opened the scoring for Steele's 100th vic- toughest teams around and tory from about 15 feet out five minutes into the game.

Sharon Radwanski then put the Lady Panthers up 2-0 when she tapped in a Carol William's shot that rebounded off the Catawba goalie. Williams scored a goal half way through the second half.

Coleen Farrell, replacing a sick Diane Del Rossie in goal, recorded in the shutout.

High Point's other victory came in its home opener against Pfeiffer College.

High Point's only goal came when Amy Rowton took a pass from Williams and fired it past the Pfeiffer goalie.

Del Rossi and the HPC defense then proceeded to counter a number of Pfeiffer attacts and held on for a 1-0 victory.

The Lady Panthers have also suffered two losses this year. The first to Appalachian State University and the other to Duke University.

Coach Steele commented that Duke is one of the the only highlight of the game, if one could find a highlight in the 4-0 lose would be the fact that the defense held Duke scoreless the last 22 minutes of the game.

The lose to Appalachian was a little tougher to take. Amy Rowton scored at the 18:51 mark of the first half. giving HPC a 1-0 advantage. The Lady Panthers held on to the one goal lead until Appalachian's Charlene McCarthey scored with 19:15 left in the game. Then, just 31 seconds later McCarthey scored again. Appalachian held on for a 2-1 win

Coach Steele was hoping the Appaiachian game would be her 100th victory because it was a home game and Duke was next on the HPC schedule

The Panthers will meet Pfeiffer on Saturday, Oct. 5, this time on Pfeiffer's home field. Then, on October & HPC will travel to Winston-Salem to meet Salem College.

Students participate in intramural frisbee

Joe Hutchins Staff Writer

The men's intramural program here at High Point College is underway with the first sport of the year being "ultimate frisbee."

The Delta Sigma Phi's are 4-0, which puts them in first place, with the Pi Kappa be decided by the tournaments. Also running during "ultimate frisbee" is the tennis tournament. The tournament begins Septmeber 24, 1985, and will run approximately four weeks. The tournament consists of the largest field of players ever in the history of High Point College Intramural tennis. Another intramural activity underway now is the Mc-Culloch Hall football season. Each Resident Assistant (RA) in the dorm takes players out of his specific sections to fill a team. Each RA is the head coach of his own team, and the games are also played on the intramural field.

The women's intramural program is not yet underway, but will begin October I with soccer. The soccer season will end at fall break, and women's volleyball will pick up in November.

Anna Lopez, director of the women's intramural program, said, "Last year was very successful." Lopez is expecting this year to be the same. The director of the men's intramurals, Randy Foster, said,

"Men's intramurals this year are full of enthusiams and seriousness."

Still Look To Improve

Tim Winters Staff Writer

Although the Lady Panthers have gotten off to a good start this season, Coach Debbie Trogdon knows there is still room for improvement.

'Pleased, but satisfied," was how Coach Trogdon described her team's performance this far into the season. She has been pleased with her team's overall play, but feels that they can play more consistently. Trogdon emphasized that they are playing "progressively better every game." That statement is That statement is reflected by their record. As of September 25, the Lady Panthers had a 9-3 overall record. They were 6-0 in District 26. and 2-0 in the Carolinas Conference.

The team has made a style of play instituted by Coach Trodgon. She attributes a major portion of this success to setters, Anne Lopez and Kim Maness. Both have accepted and adjusted to their new roles on offense. Maness has provided leadership and enthusiasm that the smooth transition to the new team will need throughout the rest of the season.

One of the biggest surprises of the season has been the much improved play of Donna Lily. As a freshman last year she was very tentative, but this year she has become more aggressive both offensively and defensively. The team has also been helped by the surprising play of two freshmen, Penney

Sellars and Stephanie Mujat. Sellars has been a spark plug for the team, and has been a personal motivator for Donna Lily. Stephanie Mujat is an excellent back row player that possesses tremendous poise for a freshman. Coach Trogdon stated that these two freshmen have played major roles in the succes of the team this season.

Concerning their road schedule, Coach Trodgon stated the team played "ex-cellent on the road." She stated that her players "enjoy showing off" and feels that this is a reason why they piay well on the road. character of this cam should be tested this mone's as they will be facing more conference rivals, and playing more at home. This month could very well determine the fate of this volleyball team. A good month could instill confidence that could carry over into the conference tournament and possibly the districts.

Soccer Team Loses First Conference Game

J.T. Turner Sports Editor

It ended up being ohe of those days where nothing went right no matter how many breaks went in their favor.

The High Point College Soccer team lost its first Carolina Conference game of the season 1-0 to Pembroke State University September 24. The goal came with 20:55 left in the first half. However, the Panthers did have a chance to tie the game.

Pete Cockburn had a breakway against Pembroke's goalie with about 10 minutes left in the first half, only to be tripped inside the penalty box bu the goalie. But the referee placed the ball outside the box, allowing Pembroke to set up and defend its goal. The penalty kick failed, costing the Panthers an excellent scoring opportunity.

The Panthers outshot Pembroke 16 to 6 but could never find the mark with any of the Pembroke's goal was the first goal HPC has allowed during conference play this year. The loss pushed HPC's and 6-3 overall.

In other action the Panthers beat Coker College 1-0 before a Parents Day Crowd of about 500. The game also was the home opener for High Point.

HPC Gets New Fence

Craig Van Steenburgh

In an effort to improve the security of High Point, a fence is being installed around the campus. Construction of this fence began on Monday, Oct. 7 and should be finished sometime in the spring, according to Ed Cannaud, Director of Campus Safety.

The seven-foot high fence was designed primarily to reduce people cutting across the campus at night. Several incidents of peeping Toms, strangers harassing female students, and a flasher all have contributed to the decision to build the fence.

"We've studied the people flow pattern." Cannady said, "and where the fence will be placed should curb the use of this shortcut. We don't want to keep people who are here to 'ook at our gardens, or are visiting students, or are here for positive reasons off the campus, it's the unwanted people who are here to cause trouble that we want to keep away."

The fence is to be built in three stages. The first stage is to close off the back of Haworth Hall and the CAEP building (the old County Health Center) to the corner of Montlieu and East College. The second phase will be the construction of the fence from the library to the baseball field, going behind the women's dorms and Belk dorm. A gate will be placed across the entrance to Belk's parking lot and across the service road by the creek. The third phase will be to continue the fence line along Lexington, enclosing the intramural field. A gate will be placed at the end of Stadium Place and then the fence will join up with the existing fence along West College by the field hockey field.

The fence is not going to completely enclose the college. "I hope the day never comes that we have to consider recommending to the trustees that we completely enclose the college." Cannady stated.

The gates across the Belk lot, the service road, and on Stadium Place will be open during the day and closed at sunset. The only way in and out of campus will be the main entrance on Montlieu, the entrance behind the library. The nolly people effected by this will be those who park in the lot behind Belk.

The access to the Belk lot will not be cut off after dark but instead a new road will link the parking lot with the road in front of Belk.

The addition of this road will eliminate the fire zone in front of Belk and add a few more parking spaces. The new spaces will not be reserved for Belk residents, however, except for about four of the spaces. They will all be used by the people in North and Yadkin dorms.

"Right now there are approximately twice as many cars registered for Women's, Wesley, North and Yadkin dorms as there are spaces. The new spaces "will improve some, but it will in no way address the total need for the Women's, Wesley, North, Yadkin dorms," Ed Cannady noted.

"It is significant to note," he continued, "that there are over 540 parking spaces on this campus, totally faculty, staff and students there's only about 360 or 70 cars registered. Which says there is plenty of parking, and it really is. It is on days that there are special events that everyone finds it hard to find a place to park."

Besides keeping unwanted people from cutting across the campus, the fence should help prevent people from breaking into cars that are parked behind Belk. There has been repeated reports to security about people stealing items from cars parked there.

"We've had more cars broken into behind Belk than any other place on campus," Cannady emphasized. "Also cars that will be parked by the CAEP building will be ripped off like crazy if we don't find some way to secure it," Cannady added.

In another step to improve the security and safety on camous, lights are being placed throughout the campus. There should not be a dark area on campus after all the lights are in place. "The lights are going to belong to the city of High Point and will be on loan to the college," Charlie Hartsoe Business Manager of High Point College said.

Emergency lighting is now being installed in all of the dorms, except McCulloch, in case of a power outage. There should be enough light in the buildings so students can get out of the building if necessary.

"All of these projects were thought up last October at the trustees meeting. The trustees of High Point College have alloted $40,000 to the fence project and another $17,000 to build the road in front of Belk," Hartsoe said.

Editorial Read the Garbage

In their search for a higher education, students are continually confounded by their ignorance of the rules and regulations of the institutions they attend.

It would seem we sign away every constitutional freedom afforded us, — we sign a contract giving college officials, perfect (or imperfect) strangers, the right to search every piece of personal property we bring to this campus for our own luxury. And yet, we don't realize it — until, of course, it's too late and we have to let them in our rooms.

We fail to realize that every piece of paper, every scrap, directly affects our lives in some way. Whether it be a Housing Contract or a written assignment for Introduction to Religion, our signatures mean a lot to our future.

Everything 1 get from the college, from pamphlets concerning the English Department (my major is English) to information about Religious Life, is read thoroughly, I read them over and over until 1 understand them completely. Then 1 file them. Everything goes somewhere specific, either in a file under its department (English or general school information) or File 13. I must admit some of the stuff I get from the college is general garbage. But some things are actually worth keeping. Most importantly whether, it's kept or not the material should be read. 1 read it all. Nothing goes past me. I can't afford to misinformed or informed. I need to know everything that goes on here.

To those living off-campus
this is especially important.

It is the individual student's ability to read such documents as the Bulletin, commonly called the Catalog, and the Student Handbook.

You can learn a lot by reading. In the three minutes in the staken you to read this column you could have read over your Housing Contract and understood the rights you have as a student in the Residence Hall community (or should I say "don't have?")

Rumors don't tell the whole truth. And you can't go back and review a rumor if you didn't get it all the first time. So try reading some of that garbage; you might learn something.

It's good to know we have an administration that can take the heat of honest, open criticism and put it into perspective. That we are allowed to criticize the powers that be in a campus publication, is, as you so well know, reason enough for celebration and thanksgiving. The right to voice an opinion is by no means universal. Many have fought and died for it. I am confident you will guard it jealously.

Finally, let me say that many of us, especially those of us in the night program, miss out on a lot of the fun. Thank you for sharing your "shaving-cream war" with us, even though it was only vicariously. (To be perfectly frank, that's the ONLY way some of us can enjoy it. The old constitution — and here, I must emphasize that I am speaking ONLY for myself—won't take too much excitement.)

Again, Deena, please extend my appreciation to your staff, to your faculty advisers, and to the college administration that makes it all possible. We're looking forward to your next edition

Thanks Deserved

On Wednesday, October 9, 1985 there was a Student/ Faculty picnic sponsored by the Student Union. The picnic. which was held at City Lake Park, was a great success because of the participation of the students and faculty. However, this picnic could not have gone off as well without the help of some very special and unselfish people. I would like to take this time to thank Eric Weiner, Freshman Class President, Jeff Sparks, Ron Corbey, Steve Fields, Mary MacCormack, Scott Heineky, my committee, and Jack Roser, Director Maintenance. These people assisted me in setting up; without them, I could not have done this picnic. So, the next time you see them, give them a pat on the back, because they

Says the Prez. . .

The world-famous Nido Qubein will be the keynote Speaker for the Student Government Association Leadership Retreat on November 9 and 10 at Camp Caraway in Randolph County. Nido who, you say?

Nido Who, you say? Nido Qubein has been written about in Money, Fortune, U.S. News and Reports, and Seventeen magazines.

Qubein came to America, from Lebanon, in 1966 without money or a reasonable grasp of the English language at the age of 17. Working his way through college Qubein finally graduated from Hign Point College with a degree in Business.

That in itself is a monumental effort.

However, to skip the middle and go to the present puts Qubein as the owner of Nido Qubein & Associates, Inc. and Creative Services which gross $1.5 million and leaves him with a reported personal income of $375,000 a year -- not bad for a guy who stepped off the boat in 1966.

Qubein, however, does not set money as his main priority. Besides the fact he is speaking at the retreat for free — his time usually goes for $3,000-an-hour — he said in a recent interview with The High Point Enterprise that, "Money is important because it allows us to do good things, but my prayer every day is that I be a wealthy man, not a rich man. . if I lose the ability to think I've lost everything."

Qubein has earned his fame from seminars and workshops on leadership and motivation. Dole Pineapple, Wrangler, AT&T, and General Electric are just a few of the corporations that have solicited his services.

So why has Qubein volunteered to speak at the retreat? Besides the fact that he is a High Point College graduate and he sits on its Board of Visitors, it may be because, "I have a burning desire to share my philosophies and my training concepts with people who choose to improve themselves personally and profession ally," (The High Point Enterprise Sept. 8, 1985).

"Improving ourselves is exactly what the SGA Leadership Retreat is all about," said Phil Key head of the planning committee for the retreat.

The planning committee consisting of Lici Wright, Jane Morris, Bunnie Wagner, June Craft, and Dr. Sistrunk, who has invited 43 different organizations to participate in the weekend.

"All organizations need to have their representatives into the Office of Student Life," said Key. "We don't want to leave anyone out."

The theme of the retreat is "Leadership A Never Ending Challenge."

There will be four educational sessions offered with a choice of three different topics to choose from at each time period. The topics range from "Coping With Burnout" to "Organizational Liability."

Dr. Jacob Martinson, president of the college, will host one of the sessions. All other faculty/staff persons participating in the event are yet unannounced

Saturday night's entertainment includes a dance complete with a local air personality. "There will be plenty of free time to relax and socialize," said Key.

Most likely, he will be someone you know. He will be of your race and social status. He will strike, not in a dark alley or in a park of in the woods, but rather in his house or yours, He is a rapist.

In a rape seminar held for the High Point College community, Cathy Purvis, who works in Rape Victim Assistance, gave some startling statistics on the fastest growing violent crime in America.

Purvis, of the Family Services Bureau of High Point, stated that public awareness on this issue was of great importance. The High Point program has assisted approximately 85 victims since Jan. 1. There are 25 such programs in North Carolina.

Purvis said that it was imperative that college-aged girls be informed. She felt that most girls are not aware of the severity of rape. Rape is an expression and dominance, she said, and all victims, regardless of their previous sexual experience, describe rape as a violent and dangerous attack that deeply affects their lives.

"The majority of rape victims are between 15 and 24 years of age," she warned.

Acquaintance rape is the most prevalent type in a collegiate environment. This simply means that the rapist and his victim have met prior to the rape. Purvis suggests that this kind of rape could be avoided if the girl was more assertive from the on-set of the encounter.

"If you are uating and drinking, you're asking for trouble," said Purvis. Purvis also made these

Purvis also made these points:

•An estimated 50 percent of all rapes are never reported to the police.

•Studies show that rapists plan ahead and choose women who seem to be likely victims.

•Most rapists are either married or otherwise involved in an ongoing sexual relationship, and are not sexually unfulfilled.

Rapists interviewed say that they have poor social relationships with women.

Ex-Nazi and Holocaust Victim to Speak at HPC

On Oct. 30, 1985 an ex-Nazi, Alfons Heck, and Holocaust victim, Helen Waterford will speak at High Point College.

Heck, now a political writer, was trained as a glider pilot and then appointed top Nazi Youth deputy for Adolf Hitler. Heck was in charge of 2,800 Nazi boy soliders who were engaged in the last ditch defense of Nazi Germany on the Western Front.

Helen Waterford, a German born Jew, worked for the resistance press during the war and then went into hiding for nearly two years. Waterford was then arrested by the Gestapo and sent to the notorious death camp,

Heck and Waterford met in 1980 and soon discovered that they had a common loathing on the events that touched their lives during the war.

Since then the two have taken their message to various audiences. They have been featured in the Los Angeles Times and were guests on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Heck and Waterford will share their experiences with students, faculty, and administration at 8:00 in the Memorial Auditorium. Admission is $1.00 to the public. # Writer's Club Devoted to Writing

"Devoted to the promotion of writing in all forms and genres." members of the Writer's Club say in their enthusiasm and love of writing whenever asked about the

The Writer's Club, advised by Dr. Edward Piacentino, is a forum for writers on all levels. There are beginners, old hands, published writers, and those who have never submitted a word. But all are welcome. Anyone can join at any time. "You don't have to be an English major to enjoy writing," said Piacentino.

The club meets once a week on Thursday at 11 a.m. in the Publications Room of the Campus Center.

In a typical meeting members pass out copies of their latest poem, short story, journalistic work or anything else they've written. The group reads along as someone reads aloud. After the reading, the group comments on the work, asks questions, gives constructive criticism, whatever they feel like saying. Writers may then take that criticism and use it to revise their work.

One of the club's projects is a literary magazine, the "Lamplighter." Any student or faculty member at HPC is welcome to contribute poetry, short fiction, drawines. or black and white photographs. A word limit has been placed on short fiction of 1,800-2,000 words. This limit is due to the lack of funds which creates a problem with available space. "I'd like to be able to put stories of up to 3,000 words in, but we just don't have the money," Piacentino said. "But I still hope to get some fine work."

The deadline for submissions is Nov. 4. Piacentino hopes this will give students and faculty alike time to work on something during fall break so they will have some good material to work with.

The club is always open to membership. There is no grant initiation or stressful rush to go through. Coming to a meeting makes you a member automatically.

Twenty kegs of golden rain fell on Jamestown Oct. 4, 1984. It has been computed that approximately 450 students were caught in, and survived the Monsoon of '85.

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity organized and sponsored the First Annual Monsoon Party. The Pika who rented the fairgrounds, provided students an alternative to the likes of O'Riley's and The Depot.

There was a $5 admission at the door. Once inside everyone received a bottomless, commemorative Pi Kappa Alpha Cup. Without the luxury of umbrellas, galoshes, individuals fought their way through the floods of people to the source of the storm! the Busch truck.

Geoff Hill and Brian Hopper provided music to "swim" by.

Survivors were taken home in lifesaving rafts (otherwise known as school vans) by paid chauffeurs.

One of the survivors said, "It was really well done. It was good to see members of every fraternity, sorority, and the independents in one place having a good time."

Peggy Draper, president of Zeta Tau Alpha, said, "It was good school representation. We should have more like it. If that's what boosts morale, so be it."

Rich Miller, Pi Kappa Alpha said, "I don't think students should have to go off campus to socialize. Even a paid, sober driver can get in an accident."

"It was the first good party yet this year." said Alison Guy, Kappa Delta. "I think the Pikas did a great public service for the school. Next time I don't think that anyone should have to drive," adds Caroline Cronin, a sophomore independent Patrice Higgins, Phi Mu, said, "It was time for us to get off campus and let our hair down without worrying about rules."

Alpha Gamma Delta Jane Morris, said, "more attentive security would have helped, but my spirits were high."

When asked about the Monsoon, Jim Sharkey, Delta Sigma Phi said, "I was really stoked with beer waves flowing from the Bud Urban Assault Vehicle."

Pi Kappa Alpha's Jim Flaherty asked, "When is the next one?"

The monsoon swept through the Jaycee Fairgrounds at 8:00 p.m. and tapered off by 1 a.m. However, some were feeling the effects of the storm on Saturday.

Library Security Beefed Up

Jon Travis

Within a year High Point College has spent $17,000 to improve the services provided at Smith Library.

In November of 1984, the college spent approximately 54,000 to enable the library to become a member of Online Computer Library Center, Inc. (OCLC). OCLC is a network of 4,900 tibraries around the world. It has close to 40 million books cataloged in its computer data base, which is located in Columbus, Ohio. As a new member of OCLC the library now has access to these books.

Judy Hithcock, the Public Services Libraina, is in charge of Interlibrary loans. She stated that, "in the past when someone requested a book through interlibrary loan, it took around six weeks to receive it. Now, with OCLC, it only takes around 10 days. Not only do we have access to books, but magazine articles as well. If students plan ahead on their research, I can get anything for them that's cataloged in OCLC."

OCLC is also used to help Eileen Brown, Technical Serices Librarian, in cataloging Looks, serials, and other library materials; ordering custom printed catalog cards and creating machine-readable date files.

Another addition to the library was the purchase of a $13,000 security system this past June.

The reason the system was installed according to Tom Gaughan, the Director of Library Services, was to help "deter people who casually take something out of the library, so that the materials are available when students or faculty members need them."

It was estimated that approximately $16,000 in current magazines were taken last year. Gaughan said, "If the system works as well here as it has in other places, it will pay for itself in the first year."

The system works by electronically detecting library materials which have not been properly checked out and then sounds an alarm. If the alarm is sounded you are asked to present all library materials to the attendent stationed near the door.

These two new additions were purchased for Smith Library, by the College, so that it can become more efficient in serving the students and faculty here at High Point College.

Country Music Seals' True Love

Lora Songster

Clad in denim, cowboy boots and hat, Dan Seals performed for the High Point College community. In front of a maximum audience of 150, Seals proved himself as a singer an songwriter.

Seals had a very personal, direct style. He spoke with the audience not at them. He performed his recent hits as well as some of the tunes made popular with his former partner John Ford Coley.

Seals received entihusiasm as he played his new hits "My Baby's Got Good Timing," and "(You Bring Out) The Wild Side of Me." Seals currently has the top country song on the charts. The song "Meet Me in Montana" is a duet with Marie Osmond. Seals did not perform this, as his guitarist had yet to learn to sing like the Morrmon songstress.

The greatest applause followed those hits that were poplarized by England Dan and John Ford Coley. The audience knew these songs and apparently enjoyed hearing them again. That is not to say that the other songs, with the country sound, were not enjoyed.

Seals left John Ford Coley to pursue his solo career in country music. Seals says that he was raised on country music, and, in fact, heard nothing else until he was 10 years old. His family is music oriented. Dan's brother Jimmy has made a name for himself in the long lasting duet of "Seals and Crofts."

Seals said that he loved North Carolina. "I think it is one of the prettiest states in America." Seals continued to say that he would love to go fishing in the Yadkin River while he was visiting.

After the concert, Seals invited the audience to talk to him. Autographs were given, pictures were taken and questions were answered.

In response to the question why he was singing country music at the present, Seals simply said, "I like pop music, but I love country music."

Arne Bray, was the opening act for the show. Brav recorded one album which had limited airplay and minimal commercial success. In the mid 60's Brav toured college campuses with his music. However, he found that country music had little appeal for a college audience.

"My intent was to wake people up to country music, but getting a job was hard," said Brav.

Since 1983, Brav has started his own talent agency in which Seals is the top name. Before, he felt that he had come to a "dead end" in his career. By using his vast knowledge of the recording industry he could help young talents accelerate into booming stars.

Of his relationship with Seals he says, "it is a symbolic relationship. He is a big name for my agency. He has opened a lot of doors for me." In return Brav has used his connections and knowledge to further Seals solo career.

Brav's performance was highlighted by a Mitch Millerlike sing-a-long of one of his songs entitled "Warm and Free."

Ismael Dreaming of Nationals

Sports Writer

On October 1, the Lady Panthers were trailing N.C. A&T by a score of 6-2. Suddenly, the team rallied to take an 8-6 lead. The comeback was sparked by a not so uncommon player. Over the last four years she has made this a habit. Possessing a great deal of international volleyball experience, and an incredible jump serve she is looking to lead HPC to a national championship in her final year. Her name is Cynthia Ismael and she just could be one of the greatest volleyball players ever to adorn the purple of High Point.

Cynthia Ismael started playing volleyball in 1976, at the age of 14 at Cochabamba in her native Bolivia. Her international playing experience ranges from winning three Bolivian National Championships and participating in two South American Championships for the Bolivian National Team. After receiving a scholarship in 1982, Ismael decided to leave Bolivia, and play volleyball for HPC.

In her final year here at High Point she is the leader behind a very powerful team that has a 14-5 overall record. The Lady Panthers are 7-1 in the districts and 5-0 in the conference. Ismael is happy with the team's play this season. but feels convinced that the team can still improve. "We are a very close team that is getting better every game," she stated.

As Ismael ends up her four years at HPC her accomplishments should not go unnoticed. She is a three time All-Conference, All-District player. Ismael has also been voted MVP of the Carolinas Tournament Conference twice. In her first two years at HPC she also played on teams that participated in the National Championships in Colorado and South Carolina. Ismael explained that she really didn't realize what the nationals meant because she did not know a word of English. Now, after four years she knows about the nationals and wants to get there one last ing the olympics watching the Brazilian team. She practiced it until she perfected it, and now is the only player in the districts and conferences to have a jump serve, according to Lady Panthers coach, Deb bie Trogdon. The jump serve provides extra power on the ball, and makes it very difficult for the opposing team to handle.

This time Ismael could bring a new weapon of hers that she didn't have two years ago, her jump serve. She started to ex-

Ismael's strong points are her serve and spike, but Coach Trogdon states, "she has no weak points." The presence of Ismael on the court is very apparent in every game. She has provided the leadership and experience to this team that has proven invaluable. She has so much influence on this volleyball program that during Christmas break, Coach Trogdon will travel to Bolivia with Ismael to recruit other players, "Volleyball has given me so much," Ismael said in retrospect. She said that when she started playing volleyball she could have dreamed that it would give her an education and scholarship. There is still one more dream for Cynthia Ismael, to play in the nationals in her final year.

Gibson Establishes New Policy, Penalty Cuts Playing Time

This is the new policy Coach Woody Gibson and Assistant Jono Jackson decided upon after the Oct. 8 loss to Catawba Collge. The reason for the new policy was that six different HPC players received yellow cards during the Catawba game.

High Point controlled nearly every aspect of the game and allowed only a few Pfeiffer breakaways. All of the breakaways were stopped by the HPC defense and the goal keeping of Sal Schiavone HPC's lone score came with 5:15 remaining in the first half. Cookman crossed the ball in front of the goal to Hewett who hit a diving header past Pfeiffer goalie, Mark Francio.

Pete Cockburn had a chance to up HPC's lead seconds later. On the kickoff, Pfeiffer brought the ball back to their center halfback, who misplayed the ball. Cockburn took the ball, dribbled between the Pfeiffer defense, and took a shot past the diving Francio. The shot hit the right post and bounced out to a Pfeiffer defender.

Pfeiffer's best scoring chance came at 23:13 mark of the first half. Jaun Marsin has a one-on-one breakaway against Schiavone. Marsin's shot, from about 25 feet out, was stopped by a diving Schiavone.

The shutout was the seventh of the year for Schiavone. Shiavone also has allowed only seven goals on the season. He has allowed one each against Carolina Conference opponents, Pembroke and Catawba. The goal Schiavone allowed Catawba to score was a penalty kick.

HPC (3-2-1) is currently in third place in the Conference. Catawba is in first (5-0), and Elon is in second. HPC tied Elon 0-0 earlier this year.

The Panthers play N.C. Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount on Sunday Oct. 27. Then, it's on to Greensboro for a game with Guilford College Oct. 30.

Farrell Scores First Career Goal

J.T. Turner Sports Editor

On Oct. 8, in Winston-Salem, the High Point girl's field hockey team defeated Sale College 5-0.

Sharon Radwanski and Heather Hughes both scored twice, but the highlight of the game came when Collen Farrell scored in the second half. caught in between their feet

It was the first goal for her four year career at HPC. Farrell became a defensive back for High Point this year after three years of playing in goal.

Even though High Point had the ball in Salem's end of the field almost 80% of the game, Radwanski scored the only goal of the first half.

"The ball just seemed to get most of the (first) half," added Coach Steele. "But when that first goal came in the second half they started to really get excited and the goals came easier.

The victory improves High Point's record to 6-4.

The Lady Panthers will return from Fall break on Oct. 25 to play in the Deep South Tournament at Davidson.

Intramural Tennis Having Problems

Joe Hutchins Staff Writer

Some of the participants in the intramural tennis tournament aren't playing their matches and are not reporting the scores of the matches that are played, according to tournament director Allan Watts.

Out of the original field of 32 players, six have withdrawn due to personal injury or previous obligations.

The tournament field is divided equally into four groups, groups A, B, C, and D. Presently, the top two players in group C have played only one match. The person in second place in group C has won only one set.

The round robin part of the singles tournament is presently underway and is scheduled to end on Oct. 30. The finals of the tournament are scheduled to end on Nov. 3.

Watts said, "The tournament will finish as scheduled." Watts also said, "In order to complete the tournament, any number of defaults or walkovers will be given at my own discretion." When a walkover is declared, no points are awarded to either player of a scheduled match.

The doubles tournament is scheduled to start on Oct. 14 The date it is to be finished has not yet been decided.

Two Students Involved in Auto Accident

Deena McMurtry

For the Sept. 19, 1985 issue of the Hi-Po a picture of a car accident was printed, but an insufficient amount of information was included.

matton was included.
Involved in the Sept. 4 accident were High Point College students Lisa McKeown, a Junior from Alexandria, Virginia, and Erick Van Vranken a sophomore from Potomac, Maryland.

According to Van Vranken, the two were on their way back from a bar in Greensboro when the car ran off the road hitting a tree and telephone pole. Both Van Vranken and McKeown were thrown from the car, but neither was seriously injured. Van vranken suttered cuts about his face, and McKeown had cuts on her face and leg. Van Vranken's new car, however, was totaled.

"There were no salvagable parts anywhere on the car," said Van Vranken.

Van Vranken was charged with exceeding a safe speed and driving while intoxicated. He stated that this blood alcohol level, which was .092, did not exceed the legal limit which is .10.

"I realize the drinking age is going up next year but if the campus won't do anything about the policy then more and more students are going to go off campus and have to drive," said Van Vranken.
"Someone might not be as lucky as we were the next time."

Wrenn Library Renovation in Progress

Ever since the W.I. Wrenn Memorial Library closed in February of 1984 it has been lying dormant, waiting for a purpose. That purpose has finally come. The forty-eight year old building is now being renovated so it will be capable of housing the admissions office and the computer center.

The future of the old library has been in planning for about two years, even before the new Smith Library was opened. A decision to put the admission's program and the computers into Wrenn did not come about until late last year.

'The entire first floor, at the present time, is to be dedicated to the admissions program," Roy Epperson, Dean of Administrative Affairs said. This area is to include office space, a reception lounge, interview rooms, storage space, and even a small kitchen. "The admissions program needs to be one of the quote 'showplaces' unquote on campus," Epperson stressed. The whole admissions program is now located in an office in Roberts Hall.

"The ground level will be the academic computer center. What we now have in Haworth will be moved into there," Epperson said. The from the first floor so that the computer center can stay open even after the admissions offices have closed. The ground floor will be divided up into classrooms, conference rooms, a lounge, and places for the computers. Two types of computers will be located in the center. One will be Apple computers which are individual units, the other computers will be hooked up to the main frame of the computers already in use by the college.

The Wrenn building was in poor condition when it was closed in 1984 and much work is required to bring the building back to usable condition. The total cost for the renovation of Wrenn is going to be more than $300,000, Charles Hartsoe, business manager for the college said. A special donation of $25,000 was made to the college for this restoration, by Frank and Lois

Gay. Mrs. Gay is a member of the board of Visitors and she is a member of the Board of Trustees and a HPC alumni. Money that had been donated to the school for the purpose of building the new library but had not been used may be put towards the Wrenn project, according to Hartsoe.

"If the contractors follow what they have said, they should be out by February 1, 1986," Epperson said. The admissions program and the computer center will then be moved in, probably during spring break. In the second half of the spring semester the computer center should be open for use. At that time the admissions program will also start to operate out of the Wrenn Building.

Of the other three floors in the back of the building, one will hold the air-conditioning equipment for the building. As for now, the other two floors will most likely be used for storage. "We may move the writing center over here because we're getting so much into word processing," said Epperson.

Phone Numbers Changed in Millis

John Travis Staff Writer

Within the past two months approximately $440 in long distance calls has been charged to the second floor hall phone in Millis Dorm, which resulted in the numbers being changed and unlisted on all three hall phones in the dorm.

Ram Miller, Director of Residence Life & Student Activities, stated that this has been an "on going problem for a number of years". In the past the Business Office has asked the Student Life Office to check the numbers. Miller though does not feel that his staff should "assume that additional role of trying to track down fraudulent calls made to pay phones."

Having the number changed was a compromise by the administration to keep from having to have the phones removed completely. Miller states that having the numbers changed and unlisted was the "better of two evils. There has to be some accountability somewhere, we (the college) can't continue to get bills. At least those students without phones can still call out."

Senior, Loy Sherrill, feels like many others that "the problem is the phone company's fault for letting the calls go through. They should upgrade their system, so things like this can't happen.'

Students like junior, Dave Ziviello said, "How are students going to find out about an emergency or death in the family?" Miller stated,

Freedom of Expression?

James Turner

As if the adventures of Jerry Falwell were not enough, here come the boys from Capitol Hill exhorting their usual fountain of incomprehensible political, and, as usual, meaningless rhetoric. And this time it's about attaching ratings, to album covers, like censors do to movies.

Now on the surface some might say, "So what. What harm could that possibly do?" Have you every heard of politicians not doing harm? But the problem here doesn't lie in the actual rating of a record to let parents know that it contains lyrics that might be offensive to some individuals or that it might contain subject matter not healthy for a 12-year-old. It is about freedom of speech. It is about a little piece of paper called the Constitution of the United States of America. Remember that from your high school social studies classes?

To say that a child's view is affected by Prince singing about Nikki in a hotel lobby doing things to a magazine is preposterous. It reminds me of that murder case in Florida where a minor, being tried as an adult, said he got the i dea from watching TV. Okay, you're free to go son. I firm dit hard to believe that a 12-vearold could be affected ment ally for life because he listens to Motley Crue, Granted they are offensive, but not in that weav. Freedom of expression must be protected at all costs. From the ideas of artistic and intellectual come the vitalingeredients for the continuation of culture in our society.

What a lot of these "Representatives" don't understand, as with a lot of kids, is that most of theoccult worship or sexual adventures attributed to rock stars is all hype; promotion gimmicks designed to sell records. 1 remember when all the nonsence came out about the Rolling Stones being into devil worship, and when Robert Plant's son died all the rum ors about Jimmy Page putting a curse on him. It's all hype. Think about it for a secorad: aren't you all of a suddlen more interested in someone or something if it's made out to be illegal, or even dangerous?

Even though the Supreme Court has criteria to jud ge whether a work is obscene or not, people still judge by their own individual tastes. To me. Prince is not obscene, but I won't write that I really think about Prince. What is obscene to me is movies like "Rambo" that glamorize Vietnam; and yet looking at the box office receipts, it's obvious that not everyone would agree with me. Yet, this is the beauty of our system. Democracy allows for individual expression, be it political, theological, intellectual, or artistic. To interfere with this process would mean tampering with our freedom. This cannot be tolerated

When it comes down to this record thing I don't believe that the answer lies in Congress legislating action that would directly affect the way we, as individuals, choose to exert our basic rights as citizens of this country. Where the answer may lie is with parents. They need to begin taking an interest in what their kids, at young ages, are doing. Screaming to turn down an album is not the answer, but accepting the fact that a kid needs to develop an identity of their own is. Toleration is the key to a peaceful existence, and a little patience doesn't hurt either.

Anthony Billings

There is a debate raging in Washington right now concerning the "vulgarity" in popular music. It seems the Civil Liberties Union and the Dallas-based National Musical Review Council want to put a rating on records and tapes much like those on movies, only more explicit. These ratings will tell consumers exwhat kind "offensive" material can be found on the record in question. They want to inform consumers before they buy a record that there is such suggestive or profane material presented on the record. Some records cited by these two organizations include any of Prince's albums, Sheena Easton's "A Private Heaven, 'among many others. They even cited some videos, including videos by Cyndi Lauper, Van Halen, and Twisted Sister. The ratings will be in the form of a sticker placed on the outside of the album jacker.

It seems all they want to do is dictate their morality on the rest of the country. It sounds more like they're saying that the general public doesn't have the sense or the morality of a rock. And they think they have to watch over us like good, kindly mother hens. But they do have the power. Most of the members of these two organizations are the wives of senators and Congressmen. If they can, it seems, they will be previewing each and every song written before it goes on tape and say something like, Take that out; it's nasty. I don't like that; take it out. Rewrite this; it says something derogatory about my husband." I can hear them now.

Here's an interesting quote from the Sept. 16 issue of "People": "We want the industry to police itself. If they refuse, we're going to look into legal ways to stop what we feel is a form of contributing to the delinquency of minors," said Sally Nevius, wife of former D.C. council chairman John Nevius and a PMRC member.

But seriously, music is really

Morality Dictated in Record Ratings

beside the point. These groups are saying that a small group can dictate to the masses a specific moral tone. Records first, then books, television. and their all-mighty Bible, on which their so-called morality is founded. Whew! Smells more like dictatorship. And. of course, with dictatorship comes censorship. The two are a matched set - you can't break up the pair.

If this trend of censorship gains strength and continues. we may as well take the blue and white out of the flag. We'll be closer to Communism than our political "guardians" in Washington want to believe.

From Public Safety

Due to the fact that we currently have but one officer on duty per shift and the increasing amount of responsibilities on campus, we regret form you that our office will no longer be able to provide transportation of any kind (excluding medical emergencies). A routine trip to the airport pulls the officer away from campus for no less than an hour and bus station runs for as much as thirty minutes. We sincerely regret that this change must be made. But in the interest of the safety and security of the college and its citizens it is a necessary change. We are thanking you advance for understanding and cooperation in this matter.

The Real World

A Slap in the Face!

Real World IOI, by James Calano and Jeff Salzman. 1 read the book, but the course didn't begin until just recently. What a slap in the face!

Internships are organized to give students experience in their chosen major. I have been fourtunate (or unfortunate, depending on how one looks at it) of not only acquiring experience, but of also witnessing the way in which the business world sometimes operates. It can be alarming and impersonal and I have realized in watching the changes taking place in the company that I intern with. moment several employees are content and enthusiastic about their jobs. Now, many of them are looking for new ones.

In one day the company's president was appointed to a new position and another took his place. Another employee came into work late to find her boss, the head of a departbye. His 25 years with the company had ended. For the past week employees have been meeting behind closed doors, moping through the halls, and even shedding tears .

"Here today, gone tomorrow," joked one employee ira an attempt to lighten the stressful atmosphere that burdened many workers. "We're just watching the dominoes fall," said another.

The reason? It seems that since the company was recently bought out, someone does not see a need to "extra" employees. Ones that handle employee counseling, ment, waiting to tell her good- employee publication, seminars, and recreation are not necessities. The top notches want fewer people to do more work, which results in larger profits.

When I first began the internship employees would say to me, "This is a great place to work! You're lucky to be able to intern with such a good company." I wonder -- what will their attitude be now. How will those remaining (lucky?) employees feel about their company in the near future? Will the elimination of the "extras" make the remaining employees feel that they no longer have a career, but just a iob?

"It's just something that happens in the business world," said one distressed employee. I'm wondering, though, is this what I have to look forward to as I venture from the security blanket of college life into the "real world?" Ugh!

Providing Activities For Campus Morale

Deena McMurtry

To provide activities and to give students an opportunity to participate in planning those activities is what the Student Union at High Point College is all about. Chairperson, Kevin Connolly, was voted in at the beginning of the fall semester when Chairperson Mike Stakes did not return to HPC.

"It was like baptism by fire, said Connolly, who served as head of the Recreation Committee in Student Union last year, "Since I was elected late I had a very quick learning experience.'

So far this year Connolly has attended the Regional Convention in Charleston, South Carolina sponsored by the National Association of College Activities (NACA) At the convention, Connolly was able to attend performances by nationally known acts, attend a fair that included agents from different booking companies and attend educational sessions that brought about new ideas for student life, and how to solve common problems.

According to Connolly, representatives attended the convention from colleges in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, and Louisianna.

"It was extremely valuable to leaders of Student Union. 1 feel the national convention in February would even be more important because it is on a much larger scale," said Con-

Another priority on Student Union's list has been the budget for the Spring, 1986 semester. On November 4 the Student Union was allocated a total of $14,000 for the spring semester.

The thing we tried to do is have a detailed calendar of all the events planned for each semester. We try and have a few main events coupled with regular movies, student/facul-ty mixers, etc.," said Connol-

Providing activities such as these is extremely important, according to Connolly. "College learning doesn't always take place in the classroom," said Connolly, "The more activities the better the campus morale." As far as problems in Student Union this semester a common one is lack of participation. "We can always use more participation in the Student Union," said Connol-

"I also have a hard time accepting non-attendance at planned events, Connolly continued. "Whether the students like it or not they pay an activities fee for these events. Instead of complaining about the activities, students should join Student Union and have a say in what is planned."

On the whole Connolly feels that being in the position of chairperson has been "an in-valuable experience." "It's been well worth any hassles," said Connolly.

"I've had the opportunity of working with good quality people. All the chairperson are doing a fine job. Without them there is no Student Union," said Connolly.

Business Secretary for Student Union is Kathy Mc-Cullogh, and Secretary is Terri Smith. Ram Miller is this year's advisor.

Student Union meetings are held in the Campus Center every other Tuesday at 5:45

Former Student Distressed Over HPC

Letter to the Editor:

I'm distressed at the turn of events at High Point "Kindergarten." I left HPC to seek a real college in a real world with a real administration. I got very fed up with people making decisions with my tuition money (a whole lot of it) and making rules that affected my private life. Being of age, I'm insulted that drinking may not be permitted on cam-U.S.A. has given me the liberty to imbibe.

What in the world? A panty raid causes heartache? If you're afraid to get hurt then don't venture out. And any damage to McCullough seems to me would help that place.

It seems ridiculous to expect things out of people that have been stripped of all freedom to begin with. Instead of concentrating on making life more miserable for students, Dr. Sistrunk, why not grab a beer and listen to what the students are saying. Have you read your job description thoroughly? If the position doesn't suit you, get outta

The first step in the roommate negotiation process is deciding what to negotiate. The workbook provides a list of issues--such as neatness of the room, noise in the mornleaving smoking, messages--that both roommates are instructed to rank as important, minor, or of no concern. Working together, they compare their rankings and make a list of items that should be negotiated. Workbook instructions stress rules professional negotiators use.

"What many people don't realize is that talking freely, sharing ideas and opinions, and negotiating ways of handling situations don't require that people like each other,' Engram observes. "The important thing is for students to identify areas where they may disagree, and to come up with mutually acceptable solutions."

Rehearsals have begun for the Christmas theatre production of "Old Man Joseph And His Family," Deviating from "Scrooge" which has been performed for the past few years, the theatre department has chosen a different type of play.

In contrast to the traditional, didactic, tale of Dickens' "Scrooge," "Old Man Joseph And His Family" is a humorous and satirical play which is not widely recognized.

"Old Man Joseph And His Family" is based on Biblical folklore where the action takes place in the world of Apocryphas Gospels, and the audience is familiar with the traditional Christian characters.

The majority of the tenperson cast is responsible for multiple roles to account for the 35 (total) characters. Cast members include Tim Austin, Seema Qubein, Gregg Thompson, Pam McHone, Bruce Tyrrell, Sarah Wenley, Rich Molinaro, Betsey Driver, Mike Reid, and Jill Walker.

The shows are scheduled to be performed on Dec. 5, 6, 7 at 8:00 p.m. and Dec. 8, at 2:00 p.m. All performances will be held in the Empty Space Theatre.

"Old Man Joseph And His Family" is being directed by Ron Law and his assistant, Janet Temple.

Phoenix Festival To Be Held

Anthony Billings Staff Writer

Have you ever wanted a professional writer to read your writing? Now you have possiblythe best chance you'll ever have.

The Phoenix XV Literary Festival will be held Friday, Nov. 15. The Festival, directed by Dr. John Moehlmann, gives a chance for local high school students and HPC students to hear professionals read their own poetry and fiction and get responsible, professional advice and criticism on their work.

The festival will begin with readings by poets Steve Lautermitch and Karer. Helgeson. Another reading is scheduled for after lunch by Jean Morgan. Immediately following the first reading the first workshop session begins in which the professionals will be reading submitted work, poetry and fiction, critiquing and giving advice for improvements.

Session two will begin immediately after a short break following session one. Session two will be a continuation of-the first session.

After Jean Morgan's reading, awards will be oresented. The awards include the Thomas Walters Award for Literary Achievement, among other cash prizes and certificates of merit. Prizes will be awarded for the best poems and short stories from each level, high school and college.

In September Dr. Moehlmann sent 150 invitations to local high schools within a 100-mile radius of High Point. He then accepted mailed submissions from these schools and from HPC

In the workshops, students' work will be criticized on form, imagery, analogy, and other elements of writing. The purpose of the workshops is to help young writers with the universal problems of beginning writing and to help "improve their writing and to give them encouragement to continue," said Moehlmann.

Moehlmann also pointed out that the festival had grown in the six years he has been in charge of it. At one time only 35 representatives attended from area high schools. That number has grown to 180-200 representatives.

Moehlmann is disappointed at the small number of HPC students who get involved each year. He feels that they should be as interested in the festival and in improving their writing as the high school students are.

Mochimann said that part of the problem may be that he has to put the college students in the same groups with the high school students. He regrets having to do this, but said, "If I could see the quality was good and had a larger number of submissions from the college, I could form a workshop specifically geared to the college level; as it is, I have to throw them in with the high school kids."

In locating professionals to speak at the festival, Moehlmann said he tried to get good people who are still sympathetic to young high school and college writers. He stated, though, that it's hard to find "writer/teachers who fit those requirements and have a good knowledge of their craft."

Some of the writers who will be speaking at the festival are HPC's own Alice Sink and Marion Hodge, Dr. Hodge has published reviews, essays and poetry in "The Lyricist," The Yearbook of American Verse," among other books and periodicals. Also speaking will be Jeffrey Miles who is the former poetry editor for the Greensboro "Sun" and has published reviews, essays, poetry, and fiction numerous periodicals; Eric Weil, whose poetry has appeared in "Poetry," "The Greensboro Review." and "The American Scholar;" among others.

Moehlmann is awaiting the festival eagerly. "I would like to see this grow and develop into a larger, more exciting festival," Moehlmann said.

On Oct. 12 the Alpha Gamma Deltas held their 3rd Annuai Pajama Mixer with the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity at the Silver Fox.

The Alpha Gam's would like to congratulate five sisters, two of which served on the Homecoming Court, Bunny Wagner and Jeannie Davis. Jeannie was crowned the 1985 Homecoming Queen and was recently admitted membership into the Delta Mu Delta Business Honor Society. Three other sisters made all-star teams in field hockey, they are Shari Campbell who made the 2nd all-star team, Amy Rowton and Elaine Estelle made the 3rd all-star team.

Zeta is currently competing in soccer intramurals and their number one team is 3-0.

On October 16 the Zeta's mixed at UNC-G with the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity. The mixer proved to be a great chance for the sisters and pledges to get away from the campus after a hectic week of Zeta's national philanthropy is ARC, the Association for Retarded Citizens and on October 31, the entire sorority spent the evening collecting for UNICEF.

KAPPA DELTA

October has been a month of many fundraisers for the Kappa Delta Sorority. On Oct. 5 they held a car wash; on the 9th, a raffle: the 17th, a night at the Silver Fox, and on Homecoming Weekend, balloon sale.

This past week, Oct. 28-Nov. 1 was Big Sister Week. This is the week that the pledges find out who their Big Sister will be. This is done by giving the pledges happies each morning with clues and a gift each night. At the end of the week, the pledges found out their Big Sister's identity by matching a sock and half a heart with the sister who is to become her Big Sister.

For the past year Kappa Delta has been sharing its sisterly love with an Indonesian girl by sending her donations and gifts. This month the sisters and pledges sent the girl a KD tee-shirt.

PHI MU

On Oct. 31 Phi Mu collected money for UNICEF, one of our annual service projects. Their goal this year is $200.

Nov. 9 is Phi Mu Pledge Dance, honoring our new Treka Brown, Diana Del Rossi, Liz Dercksen. Lori Nappi, Sandy Rodgers, Bobbi Smith, and Randi Wagodner. The dance will be held at Top of the Mart.

Sisters and Phi's received anonymous Halloween Buddies for Fall Break and made Happies during the week. Before collecting money for UNICEF, Halloween Buddies exchanged treats.

Phi Mu birthdays celebrated this month were Kathy Hernandez, turning 20 years old, and Lori Nappi and Ann Osterhout, both turning 21. . . finally legal!

One candlelight service was held by Phi Mu's. Cindy Casperson received a diamond from Rob Weinhold, Pi Kappa Alpha. After the candlelight service, both fraternities escorted the newly engaged couple to the creek for a swim.

THETA CHI

In the current academic year at HPC the Theta Chi Fraternity has become very active in school activities.

In sports, Matt Kohn and Jim Anderson have returned to the golf course for the Panthers with Matt playing number one and Jim playing number four. Fred Smiley sprints back to the track for The Panthers also.

The HPC Fine Arts Department is presenting "Old Man Joseph And His Family" this December. Theta Chi has experienced a most successful rush with this year's induction of 11 pledges. This was one of the highest numbers of pledges for Theta Chi since 1978.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

The Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity has had a very successful beginning this year after associating 20 fine men during rush. Homecoming representative, Donna Scherp, placed first runner-up on the court and Brother Dennis Smith won second place in the talent show.

Thanks to A.M. Kevin Markham for his work in organizing "The Women of High Point College" calendar which is currently on sale for $4 each.

Congratulations to two brothers who were recently lavaliered: Andrew Stewart to Kim Woolsey (Zeta Tau Alpha) and Tom Andrew to Rhoda Northcut (Chi Omega at Duke University).

Don't forget that Lambda Chi Alpha sponsors a day at Country Roads each Friday from 2-6 p.m.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity would like to congratulate Rob Weinhold and Cindy Casperson on their engagement, as well as John Higgins and Karla Leidte on their engagement.

Pi Kappa Alpha is also organizing a mixer with Zeta Tau Alphas from High Point College with the Pikas and Zetas at Winthrope College. The date of the mixer is Nov. 16, 1985.

Pi Kappa Alpha has also set up a party for the college on Nov. 22, 1985. The party will be entitled The Beast Feast.

DELTA SIGMA PHI

After a very successful rush. the Delta Sigs set their sights on the intramural season. A first place finish in Ultimate frisbee helped fuel up the Sigs in anticipation of soccer. On the social side, a very exciting road trip to Myrtle Beach during Homecoming Weekend was enjoyed by six Sigs. This was followed up just this week by a little late night excursion in Greensboro. ## '85 Job Fair Interest Students

High Point College, along with eight other area schools sponsored a comprehensive, two-day Job Fair for students interested in various career fields on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 5 and 6, at Winston-Salem State University.

The event was sponsored by the North Carolina Career Consortium, which is composed of High Point, Bennett, Davidson, Elon, Greensboro, Guilford, and Salem Colleges, as well as Wake Forest University and Winston-Salem State. Representatives from approximately 70 companies took part in the Job Fair, which was held in the C.E. Gaines Athletic Complex. Eighty-five High Point College students

On Tuesday, November 5, students were able to talk informally with the company recruiters. The 1:00 - 5:00 p.m. session gave the students a chance to gather information about career opportunities and make helpful contacts, according to Joyce Wainer, director of career development for High Point College.

On Wednesday, November 6, seniors were interviewed by companies during pre-arranged appointments. To help the companies determine which students they want to interview, participating colleges sent resumes of interested students in appropriate disciplines to the companies several weeks prior to the Job Fair. Recruiters involved in the interviewing process were able to schedule approximately 12 30-minute sessions during the day.

Seniors sent in resumes and were pre-screened by the companies. Only then could they be invited to interview." Mrs. Wainer explained. "We believe this makes the program successful, particularly since several of our students who participated in last year's Job Fair obtained excellent posi-

Trogdon Named Conference Coach

Joe Hutchins Staff Writer

Dehhie Trogdon, head volleyball coach at High Point College, was named Conference Volleyball coach of the Year."

This was Trogdon's first year at HPC and she led her team to an 8-0 record in the conference, and 14-1 in the district. The HPC women were 18-5 overall.

There were a great deal of adjustments that had to be made by both Coach Trogdon and her players. The players had to learn the international style of volleyball. In addition, they had to adjust to Coach Trogdon's style of coaching. She had a complete book of plays and rules that each member of the team had to memorize from cover to cover. The name of the book is "The Volleyball Bible." She also changed the training routine which proved to be very difficult for the girls to get used to. Every Monday, Wednes-day, and Friday, the girls would have their first workout sesison at 6:00 a.m. On each of these mornings the Coach would eat breakfast with her team. This would allow her to monitor the types of food her players ate. According to Coach Trogdon, the girls had to eat the right foods in order to play properly. The team also traveled to Greensboro three times a week to receive special strength training.

Coach Trogdon's main goal is to have a national championship team. She wants to bring national recognition to the campus of HPC. She believes it can be done, however, she knows that everything has to come one step at a time. played Trogdon

volleyball and basketball on the collegiate level at Western Carolina University. She had always wanted to coach volleyball but never got the opportunity until this year. She coached both track and basketball at two different high schools (Douglas Byrd High School in Fayetteville, N.C. and Cummings High School in Burlington, N.C.) before coming to HPC. She wanted to coach volleyball, but never get the chance because she was already the head coach of two sports in high school.

Trogdon likes coaching on the collegiate level a great deal more than on the high school level. According to Coach Trogdon, on the collegiate level, highly skilled athletes are being coached and the coach has the choice of players. They can recruit whoever they want to play for them. Trogdon believes this is a great assest of the college level because, in high school sports you are limited to the types of players you have.

This season to Coach

Trogdon, was a reflection of her own personality. She believes in dedicating her life to her goals, and enjoying life to its fullest extent. She had no idea she would be receiving coach of the year honors. She only concentrates on the next practice or the next game. She believes that recognition will come if you take thinks one step at a time, and if you really work hard at what you are doing. Coach Trogdon said, "The team motto is 'Yes We Can' ". This motto was clearly evident in the performance of the women's volleyball team here at HPC this season. It was also a direct reflection on the head coach, Debbie is called Enforcer." His name is Gary Hewett, and for the past two years he has led the HPC soccer team in scoring.

Since arriving at High Point, Hewett, a busines, administration major, has taken on the job of Resident Assistant in Millis dorm, and is a member of the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

One of his career goals is to work in the health care business. But Hewett may go elsewhere for his junior and senior years. Schools such as James Mason have been interested in him, but nothing is definite.

The 23-year-old, 195-pound striker from Alexandria has seven goals and three assists for the 10-4-2 Panthers. Last year he scored 14 goals and gave assists. Jeff Potter scored 16 goals in 1974 for the HPC single-season

Potter also holds the career mark at High Point with 48 goals. Hewett has 21 career goals and is only a sophomore. Hewett went into the Marines after high school spending four years in the service, reaching the rank of sergeant. When he returned to civilian life he was about to start work with the government when his high school soccer coach asked him if he would be interested in going to college. The coach gave him the name of High Point Col-

The name "The Enforcer" came from his physical style of play out on the soccer field, a style that has earned him several yellow cards this year alone

Fall Isn't For Love

They say spring is for love, and the High Point College women's tennis team is hoping to see more of it on the other side of the court in the spring.

"Disaster," added Coach Kitty Steele, "that could be the only word for the fall."

The Lady Panthers have had to suffer through more injuries, illness, and bad weather than any other season Coach Steele could remember.

Donna Reynolds just got word, this past week from her doctor, that she can start play again, but won't be able to play in any of the remaining three matches.

The only reason there are three matches left to play is that during the season five matches were postponed and only two have been made up. And because of uncoming academic tests, Coach Steele is having trouble rescheduling the matches.

Besides Reynolds, Anna Lopez will return in the spring. She is currently playing volleyball for HPC.

The Lady Panthers will also have the services of two girls who are presently redshirted a transfer who had to sit out the semester and one other girl that Coach Steele would not reveal the name of.

According to Coach Steele the bright spot would have to be sophomore Kim Lewers, at first singles. Lewers will probably find herself at that position again in the spring.

The only thing left for Coach Steele and the Lady Panthers to do is to sit through the winter and hope their enthusiasm becomes reality.

Shari Campbell Special to the Hi-Po

The field hockey team ended its regular season with a record breaking performance at the Deep South Tournament held at Davidson College.

The HPC field hockey team came out of the tournament with two wins, one loss, and one tie. Nine of the 13 members of the team made the tournament all-star team.

The nine women will compete with others selected to the tournament team November 15-17 here at HPC to see who will move on to Norfolk to compete in the Southeast Tournament later this year. Teams will be comWashington, D.C, Baltimore. and the Tidewater region.

Never before have so many HPC players been selected. Team representatives are as follows:

First team (Senior) Williams and freshmen Heather Hughes For Williams, it is her third year on the first team. She has also represented the Southeast for the past two years out in California and is expected to make it three straight.

Intramural Soccer Comes to An End

Joe Hutchins Staff Writer

The High Point College intramural soccer programs for both men and women are beginning to wind down, according to women's intramural director Anna Lopez and men's director Randy Foster.

Men's intramural soccer is due to end in about two-and-ahlf weeks. The standings are incomplete because only three games were played prior to Fall break. The rest of the soccer games will be played as scheduled and the winning team will be announced upon completion of the season.

The women's intramural soccer program is much more organized than the men's program. The team in first place is the Zeta Tau Alpha first team. The KD's are in second place, followed by the Alpha Gams, Independents, and the Zeta's second team finished last.

A tournament will be held this week to determine the women's soccer champion. Two games will be played Thursday, the first starting a 3:45 followed by the second at 4:45. The Zeta first team will face the Independents in the first game. The second game will have the Alpha Gams challenging the KD's.

The two winners of the Thursday games will meet in the championship game on Sunday. The game is scheduled to begin at approximately 3 o'clock. The winner of this game will be crowned the High Point College women's intramural champion of the 1985 season.

When asked about the progression of the intramural season, Anna Lopez replied, "The soccer program has been a lot of fun for the girls, and a lot of tun for the girls, and they all have enjoyed it." The next sport for the women will be volleyball, and it is scheduled to start on November ii or

According to Randy Foster, the men's volleyball season is scheduled to begin in about three weeks and is anticipated to end before Christmas break. One large track meet will be held on November 21, and will last all afternoon. The meet will be for all interested participants and a winner for each event will be determined by the end of the day. The basketball season for the men will get underway after Christmas, and will be followed by softball in the Spring. This will round out the intramural activities of the 1985-1986 season.

Zenith Meets First Deadline

Melissa Mize

Tuesday, Oct. 15 was the first deadline for the 1986 Zenith yearbook staff.

Thirteen members have been working since the beginning of school to meet the deadline of 80 pages. The staff, which meets or Tuesdays at 2:30, turned in 86 pages to start the year off right and to get ahead for the second deadline.

The staff found that much time and effort had to be used to complete the photography, copy, and layouts. Problems such as groups not showing up for their designated group shot times, photos needing reshooting, and time to write copy were some things that plagued the staff.

The Zenith staff this year consists of Melissa, the Editor; Tom Buttler and Mike Bridger, Sports; Kelli Green, Lori Morton, and Terri Burchetter, Advertisements; Jon Travis and Sandy Portterfüld, Greeks; Elizabeth Smith, Faculty; Jennifer Austin and Jennifer Palmer, Classes; Ken Zeller and Bonnie Hannah, Organizations.

The Zenith is advised by Dr. Chilcoat, Ms. Olsen, and Mr. Porter.

The Academic Dean of the College has announced the Fall date for the Writing Proficiency Examination. It will be administered at 11:30 on Tuesday, November 12, 1985, in Room 106 of Haworth Hall.

All students who enrolled at HPC during or after September, 1980, and who plan to graduate from HPC must take and pass this examination. Those in particular should take the test this Fall are new transfer students and those currently enrolled in English 102. Any students who enrolled prior to 1980 and who has been out a semester must also sit for the exam

Phones

"There's a limit to how much responsibility we can take for that."

Miller suggests that students who can afford it, have phones installed in their rooms. "If students can't afford it, we have a community there, particularly with fraternites. You can ask your brother or neighbor who has a phone if you can give their number to your parents, in case of an emergency. Maybe in a couple of years we can provide telephones as part of the room rent."

Miller wants the student to know that having the numbers unlisted is by no means any effort to punish students, it is business

"This is just accountablity, but if we find that one of our students has defrauded us, I'm willing to take disciplinary action on campus,"

The telephone company stated that on the inside of the "It is telephone director. unlawful to defraud a telephone company for interstate telephone service by means of any scheme: charging toll calls to the number of another subscriber without lawful authority; or charging toll calls to a false and fictelephone calling titious number, Penalty; Fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment not more than 5 years, or both." (Felony) (Title 18, U.S. Code, Ch. 63, s. 1343).

Miller's hope is that "the students will understand we've done all we can. There's a limit to what I or the college can do in this situation. I believe there is still room to pursue this on up the line with the telephone company."

Waterford spent two months at Auschwitz facing the infamous Dr. Josef Mengele several times. A simple hand gesture from him literally meant life or death. Heck vividly recalls meeting the Fuhrer face to face.

"He was to me like meeting

"He was to me like meeting God. I would have done anything for him."

Hitler stoked the fire of anti-semitism by associating Jews with Soviets, according to Heck. Later the Jews were linked to the Capitalists (Americans).

Although the Jews were a small threat to Germany in actual numbers, "It was an international conspiracy we were taught to be afraid of," said Heck.

When asked what preventive steps could be taked to avoid another genocide Watersaid said, "You must love the other just like you love yourself and trust the other like you trust yourself... if people don't agree they don't have to kill each other.

Heck is not as optimistic as his companion about mankind exterminating each other but does offer advice.

"I think there are two chances for decent survival: one is tolerance the other is freedom of speech...but if you ever have to salute the president you'd better move."

Maintenance

Problems Plague Campus

The following story is the first of two parts of an indepth study of the Maintenance Department.

John Higgins

A.B. Billings Assistant Editor

If the question were asked of you 'where would you find leaky pipes, collapsed ceilings, and fly-infested rooms,' your answer might be the ghetto, but the winning answer is High Point College. Maintenance problems have plagued the campus for many years. Dean Albert Sistrunk gave the reason for the maintenance problem, "For many years the college chose to defer regular maintenance on some buildings on campus." Maintenance was not done to buildings until a problem arose, according to Sistrunk.

"We're reaping the harvest of that now," said Sistrunk.

"What we want to do is to get to a point where we could implement a preventive maintenance program," said Sistrunk. "That means that we'll get everything onto a schedule. We'll do the kind of maintenance that will keep the buildings and the furnishings in those buildings in good repair all the time."

According to Sistrunk this recovery is easier said than done. "It takes years to recover from deferred maintenance," said Sistrunk.

However, steps are being taken to catch up with maintenance needs. "Mr. Hartsoe has been able to chan-nel a tremendous amount of money into maintenance needs, including things we identified and emergency needs, like replacing the roof of the Campous Center.

The leak in the roof of the Publications Room in the Campus Center and the numerous leaks in Millis, Belk, Yadkin, and North dornitories were not planned in the budget, but had to be and are still being repaired on an emergency basis," said Sistrunk.

"We're trying to catch up with what wasn't done in the past and what's going wrong now," added Sistrunk.

The reason for the delay in making repairs is in "making the dollars available for emergency needs," according to Sistrunk

There is also a delay in scheduling the work. A problem arises, especially, when the campus maintenance crew can't do the type of work necessary for the repairs. "If you go to an outside firm, you've got to go out with a bid, and the company that gets the bid has to schedule it into their other work — that takes a lot of time." said Sistrunk.

doesn't take," said Sistrunk.
"That's due either to the repair not being done properly or to faculty replacement equipment or any number of things.
And it has to be done over again."

fact that sometimes the repair

Sistrunk showed enthisiasm in the advances that are being made. "I feel good about the efforts that the Business Office and Maintenance Office are making," he said. "They're trying hard."

The second half of this story will follow in Issue VI of the 'Hi-Po' in two weeks, including interviews with students, the head of the Business Office, and the head of the Maintenance Office.

Infirmary Does Help

Craig Van Steenburgh

Is the Infirmary adequately supplying the students of High Point College with health services? Some students don't think so. It is possible, however, that students don't realize what the Infirmary has to offer.

At the beginning of the semester, each student living on campus or any commuting students who are unmarried and not living with their parents are required to pay a $62.50 health service fee. Many students seem unsure what this fee covers.

According to the college analog, this fee provides medical care for minor ailments and accidents. The Infirmary's Head Nurse, Joyce Isenhower adds, "It gives the students the option to see the doctor, fives time a week. Two visits to a family physician would cost about the same as this fee." Also, most non-prescription medications are supplied to students at no charge.

Does Help Students

Extra expense to students would be levied for any special medications such as prescription drugs, X-rays, vaccinations, surgery, and hospitalization. The last four items would need to be handled at High Point Regional Hospital.

"We are an Infirmary, not a hospital. We are here for minor illnesses and injuries," Isenhower said. "If there is any question at all about an injury, we send them to the hospital's emergency room. They seem to be working better with us this year as far as seeing students; we haven't had as many complaints this year as in the past."

All students are required to have some form of health insurance while they are attending HPC. The college offers a low premium accident, hospitalization and surgical insurance plan for $50 a semester. This plan will pay for any medical treatment that is needed as the result of an accident. There is a $25 deductible which the student must pay.

Contrary to what students believe, the Infirmary is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Between 8 a.m. and noon, and at 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. there is a registered nurse on duty. At any other time, someone will be on call and an assistant will be in the Infirmary from 5 p.m. until 8 a.m. weekdays and on weekends. Isenhower recommends that students who need to get to the Infirmary at neight should call

Penicillin Growing On Campus

Bowman Gray School of Medicine -- Eat Your Heart Out! High Point College recently grew enough penicillin to vaccinate half the population of the Triad area.

Where did this growth take place? In the publications room on the third floor of the Campus Center.

Why? It seems that the maintenance at HPC has been slack in areas that need repair. In early May of this year a small drip was discovered coming down from the publications room's ceiling. A student reported the drip to the Student Life office in hopes of having it repaired.

Three months, and several million drips later, the entire carpet of the publications room was a greenish, moldy mass, completely ruined and soaking wet.

After several complaints concerning the dilemma, the carpet was removed and a giant, green garbage can was placed directly under the leak in ceiling to catch all drips.

At present, six months following the discovery of the original drip, the publications room is carpetless, the roof still leaks, and disgusting, slimy leeches have made their home in the green garbage

Maintenance - Where are

The complaints from resident students needing repairs are endless. One student joked sarcastically that he knows where he'll be sleeping next it all depends on where the roof isn't leaking!

Is the maintenance department understaffed? Too much in demand? Not qualified? What Is The Problem? Obviously, there is one.

Taping Tax Proposed

What is wrong with this country?! My editor has just handed me a packet from the Recording Rights Coalition which includes a bill introduced to the Senate by Senator Charles Mathias (R-MD) on Oct. 7. The bill advises that Congress should have the right to tax audio recording devices, including cassette tape recorders and blank cassettes, in order to pay a royalty to the performers who would normally profit if their albums were bought.

Congress is taking a big step here. They're insinuating that the only thing blank cassettes are used for is to record albums instead of buying them. People use blank cassettes for many purposes, recording meetings, letters, interviews, live performances. Just because people buy blank cassettes does not mean they're trying to rip-off the big record companies or their favorite artists.

Blank tapes used for these other purposes would be taxed as much as tapes used for music recording. The revenues from the taxing of tapes for these uses would go to the record companies unjustly. Consumers who tape because their musical needs are not satisfied by prerecorded cassettes and those who never tape music at all should not be taxed just to give the booming recording industry even more money.

In the ARRC's position paper included in the packet it is stated that "home tapers are the record companies best customers, and it is simply not true that every album taped is a sale lost." We can believe that whole-heartedly. People buy album upon album, take them home, and record them. Then they use these tapes in home, in their cars, at work, in the gym, on their bikes everywhere. They are not trying to sell them.

The bill also states that the money collected is to be distributed among the copyright holders of the music supposedly being injured. That means the big record companies, the publishing companies, and a few of the biggest names in the business. It is left first to the copyright holders to agree on the distribution of the money. If they can't agree, the government must step in and decide where the money goes. Do you want to give those big record companies even more money?

Records already cost at least ten bucks each as it is. How much will they cost when we have to pay a tax on blank cassettes? If they're going to tax blank cassettes, why don't they go ahead and tax prerecorded cassettes - just to make sure the copyright holders get their share?

Here is the exact quote from the bill, The House Recording Act, s. 1739, Section (E), Noninfringing Uses --

. . the Copyright Royalty Tribunal shall exempt from royalty tees audio recording devices or audio recording media that --- (ii) will not be used for making audio recordings by individuals for private use or for other infringing purposes in violation of this title."

Those "invididuals" are you and 1. Think about it. Do you want to pay a taping tax?

Shooting Brings Excitement to Class CAMPUS

In teaching Journalism 1, you have to make it, not only interesting, but (heaven forbid) fun.

Dr. Marion Hodge could be called one of the strangest instructors here at HPC. Of course, not strange in a negative sense. But strange in the sense that some of his teaching techniques are not exactly what the administration might want. "Off the wall" might be a better term to use.

Tuesday, Nov. 5. Hodge arranged for Coach Richard Hoffman to enter his journalism class about ten minutes after class began, wearing a stocking over his face and to "shoot" him. After five minutes, Hodge got up off the floor with blood on his shirt (thanks to the Drama Department) and told the class to write a straight news story on the event.

All in all, it was an exciting, fun, learning experience. That had to have been one of the best classes I've ever rad.

If we had more classes like this, we might learn more we'd certainly enjoy it more. Now, of course, every instructor doesn't have to stage a fake shooting just to make a point. But they can liven up their classroom environment a

Why do classrooms have to be the sweatshops that they are - or become? They should be a place to learn - no matter what the tecnique.

One of the best ways to learn is through an enjoyable experience, if we could feel more comfortable in a classroom, we would probably listen more attentively and feel comfortable enough to ask questions and join in the discussion. Classrooms have the reputation of being stark. stuffy, closed up torture chambers. Some deserve this stereotype.

A lot of teachers tell you that a class is only what you make it. That's only partially true. Sure, it is what the student makes it - to an extent. It's also what the instructor makes it.

Student Blasts 'Hi-Po'

Yes, we've all heard of yellow journalism, sensa-tionalism, biases, and slander. I associate these works with such tabloids at The Star and The National Enquirer, I move we add one more to the list of irreputable publications -the Hi-Po.

For example, look at the editorial of the Sept. 19 issue. "High Point Instead of Kindergarten," it should have been titled. "Condemn Sistrunk." Yes, I realize the was someone's editorial opinion--certainly someone who clashes with authority figures. But the condemnations were not to end there. On Oct. 3, we find in the lead story a quote that stated Sistrunk acted like a "jerk." If the article had been of major importance, which it was not, and accounted Sistrunk as breaking the student's door down, then yes. maybe he acted like a jerk. But no evidence of such illegal actions was given.

Here we have a college newspaper lashing out against a man who is just doing his job. He talks with the students, hears their endless complaints, and acts within his power when students "get out of hand." Certainly if he were going beyond his power, he would have been relieved of his duties. This has not occur-

Why highlight stories which are of no major importance just because there's a great quote about Sistrunk in paragraph eight. So what if "Officials Search Dorm Room''? Isn't an arrest more important than a legal search? The "arrest story" was placed at the bottom right-hand side. Somewhere the word priority was misinterpreted

Of course, 1 don't believe the HI-Po will let its "personal war" with Sistrunk end here. He's too much of a newsworthy scapegoat for the Hi-Po. 1 propose we send copies of our newspaper to the writers of "Dallas." By the end of the year, J.R. will look like a saint compared to Sistrunk and his "dastardly deeds"--deeds created and emphasied by the Hi-Po Enquirer.

Honors Program Proposed

A.B. Billings Assistant Editor

Beginning next fall an honors program will go into effect to help develop the potential of those students with higher ability, according to Dr. Edward Piacentino.

In the fall of 1986 one or two courses will be offered to Freshmen in the new honors program. The Honors Program Committee, headed by Piacentino, is currently determining the criteria for selecting students for the program and the goals of the program. The program will be phased in over the next four years. Once in the honors program, students will be able to take honor courses each year of their college career.

Honor courses will also be open to upperclassmen. They will have to apply for them and receive special permission to enter them. Stipulations for the upperclassmen eligibility have not yet been determined. Students not in the honors program will also be able to take honor courses with special permission.

The committee, consisting of Dr. Piacentino, Dr. Fred Yeats, Dr. James Stitt, Paul Lundrigan, Kathleen Olson, and Aubrey Highfill, feels that the honors program will benefit both the student and teacher.

Students will benefit from a stimulous for excellence, according to Piacentino. He hopes to give students more of a challenge than they receive in other courses. He also hopes to offer enriching learning opportunities, both curricular and extra-curricular. "We hope to help students develop their intellectual potential to it's fullest," Piacentino said.

The committee feels that the faculty members will benefit from working with a small group of students with a higher intellectual potential, and, hopefully, be able to take those benefits into their nonhonor classes and improve them, according to Piacentino

"Hopefully, the honors program will help improve the entire academic program at HPC." Piacentino said. "I'm very excited about it. I think it will add a new, enriching dimension to the campus."

"But I hope the program won't be designated as elitist,' Piacentino added.

Zenith Staff Works Hard

Melissa Mize Special to the Hi-Po

When asked, "How do you feel about working on the yearbook," many of the Zenith staff members agreed that it was a lot of hard work Much more time is involved then they had imagined. Time they would like to be using for other things such as studying.

So far, the staff has worked hard and is continuing to work harder to meet the second deadline. Their goal is to produce a "better than ever" yearbook.

Helping each other is an important task in order for the staff to produce a yearbook.

When asked what kinds of positive and negative comments that had about working on the Zenith, the staff replied that they were disappointed that they had not learned about drawing layouts; were pleased that they had a chance to meet new faculty and administration; were able to get involved in High Point College activities, and are having a say in what is to appear in the vearbook.

Sistrunk Arrested For Impersonation

On Thursday Nov. 14 at approximately 3:30 pm a High Point Police officer came to the college and arrested Dean of Students, Albert Sistrunk.

The officer presented Sistrunk with a warrant charing him with impersonating a college official. The Dean smiled and then confessed to the officer that "it was only a matter of time before I was caught. I have nothing to hide anymore." The warrant had been issued by the students of High Point College.

The officer placed hand-cuffs on the Dean, commenting, "just in case he tries to get away from me." However, Sistrunk made no attempt to resist arrest.

As the Dean was being led to the police car he was heard saving, "Don't worry about me, I won't be locked up for long. My boys will break me out. I'll be back to get the ones who turned me in.

Sistrunk's involvement with organized crime has been disputed, but nothing has been proven, police said.

On his way to the jail, the police officer transportating Sistrunk had to stop for an accident on Lexington and Main Streets. At first the officer felt that the accident was only a diversion as part of a plot to break Sistrunk from custody. He later decided this was not the case and Sistrunk ended up helping the officer with the accident. It was this act of "good Crow gang is unclear at this behavior" that probably purtime. Some reports label him suaded the judge to set low as their "boss."

Sistrunk's bail was set at $150, but being the generous man that he is, he raised $232.10 to donate to the American Cancer Society. You see, Dean Sistrunk was just another participant in the Cancer Society's Jail-a-Thon.

Dean Sistrunk was taken to "iail" in Westchester Mall where he was given a phone, and had to call anyone he knew in order to raise his bail. He was put into a prison uniform and could not leave until the bail was raised.

Sistrunk's three children helped to get their father out of jail by going around the collecting neighborhood money. They made up a sign saying, "Help us get our father out of jail."

"We had a family portrait made while I was wearing that prison outfit, Sistrunk said. We are thinking about making it into a Christmas card."

In order to have Dean Sistrunk arrested a $25 arrest fee had to be paid to the Cancer Society. Six students donated money to this worthy cause: Ted Coryell, Ray Hotz, Darren Clark, Tammy Riggs, Deena McMurtry, and Craig Van Steenburgh.

"I had a great time, and we raised money for a very worthy cause." Sistrunk said.

It was later discovered that Dr. Crow had also been arrested. Dr. Martinson had put up part of the bail for both Sistrunk and Crow. His involvement with the Sistrunk-

SGA Sponsors

Retreat

Deena McMurtry

On Nov. 9 and 10 students at High Point College attended a Leadership Retreat at Camp Caraway sponsored by the SGA Executive Council.

According to senior Phil Key, chair of the coordinating committee and treasurer of the SGA, the goal of the retreat was to improve the 43 student organizations at college.

"Phil did an absolute superb job." said Dean of Students Al Sistrunk. "If anyone deserves the credit for this retreat it is Phil."

Among the speakers who gave workshops at the retreat were President Jacob Martinson, Dean Al Sistrunk, Professor Allen Goedeke, Chaplain Ben Curry, and keynote speaker Nido Quebein

The guests spoke on topics such as Coping With Stress, Effective Listening, How to Motivate, and How to Study.

Many of the speakers agreed on one specific idea, having the ability to communicate effectively as a leader.

"We often say things we don't mean and mean things we don't say," said Nido Ouebin

According to Allen Goedeke the secret of achieving effectiveness as a leader lies in the ability to motivate people.

"Effective leaders are not people who lead, but people who involve," said Goedeke. "Take the risks of letting your members get involved."

Besides attending the workshops, students were able to split up into groups and voice their opinions concerning problems on the HPC campus. Some areas discussed were: food services, the renovation of Harrison Hall, parking, a social establishment for students, security, maintenance and emergency phones.

According to Dean Sistrunk one recommendation that came from the retreat has already been approved. A leadership council will be established for all the leaders from each organization on campus to meet together.

The Leadership Retreat also gave the participating students a chance to loosen up and enjoy the weekend. On Saturday night the "First Annual Student/Faculty Footsompin, Tailwagging, Get Down Party Time" was held. There was food and fun for all.

Then on Sunday morning, students attended a devotion service located outdoors with a beautiful, lakeside view.

"I think it was excellent," said Lici Wright, senior, on the Leadership Retreat weekend.

"I was delighted," said Sistrunk. "We couldn't have asked for any better results."

Concerning the importance of the retreat Melissa Mize commented, "I realized how important it was to be close to the group that you're a leader of, which in my case is my staff, and to be close to other leaders.

Ouebin Headlines Retreat

Deena McMurtry

Nido Qubein is the American dream come true, as described in the March 6 issue of the "Winston-Salem Journal."

Recently, Qubein spoke to students at the first annual Leadership Retreat at Camp Caraway. Qubein, a 1970 business graduate of High Point College, spoke on the qualities of effective leadership. His speech was entitled "Leadership: The Winning Difference".

"Leadership is an awesome thing," stated Qubein at the Awesome is perhaps a word that would also describe Qubein's success. Dynamic describes his personality.

Qubein arrived in America from his native country of Lebanon in 1966 with $50 in his pocket. By age 30, Qubein was a millionaire.

Now 36, Qubcin controls his own firm, Creative Services, Inc., which clears more than $1,000,000 a year. Besides being a corporate consultant, Qubein is a motivational speaker, addressing people approximately 300 times a year.

In an enthusiastic and witty manner, Qubein captivated the Leadership Retreat participants. "I felt that Mr. Qubein was a terrific speaker," said Craig Van Steenburgh. "Putting his ideas into effect is my next step."

"He's a super guy," said John Higgins. "He's super because he has a strong attitude about himself, yet is not stuck on himself." He spoke on how to motivate, no manipulate." said Higgins.

Said Mike Lemmo, 'I thought he was excellent.'' I really liked the way he spoke. He really impressed me and got his message across.''

According to Qubein, famous figures such as Adolf Hitler, and the Revered Jim Jones were great leaders, but not good leaders.

"To have an open mind and an open heart, and to understand how to get along with people is most important," said Qubein on leadership. "Every leader I ever knew was able to related to, and to motivate people."

One problem that leaders tace, said Qubein, is inettective communication.

"Many people say things they don't mean and mean things they don't say," said Oubein.

He likes to tell the story of a Minnesota newspaper that was sued for printing the headline, "Pertile Woman Dies In Climax," although Pertile and Climax were both towns in Minnesota. Another example of double meaning that Quebin used to amuse the HPC students was a sign in the Atlanta airport that read, "For Bathroom - Use Stairs."

To communicate effectively with people Qubein said that leaders must us the SLOW methods; Speaking, Listening, Observing, and Working. There is a difference.

according to Qubein, in listening to someone speak and actually hearing what is being said. The same is true with simply seeing things and observing the needs of people. Self-esteem was perhaps one of Qubein's main ingredients to becoming a good leader. Concluding his speech, Qubein told the students he felt that possessing the spirit of thankfulness is of major importance.

"If we do something small with the greatest of spirit it becomes something big."

Retreat Weekend is Refreshing

The first annual Student Government Leadership Retreat was in the words of its participants an "exhiliherating, exciting, wonderful and fun" event.

The atmosphere of the retract was refreshing because it grouped people together-who normally don't interact at High Point College-and gave them a common ground to work and learn with each other. Ray Hotz, Student Government Association vicepresident, tagged the affair as a large scale "Breakfast Club"

One of the major ideas was spawned from the retreat consisted of forming a Board of Leaders to meet regularly with Dr. Al Sistrunk, dean of students, to discuss how to better improve student services and facilities. The group, which would include representatives from many campus interests, would also greatly improve communication between organizations. The move would also be likely to facilitate co-sponsorship of events as well as offering a needed vehicle to pool the kaliedoscope of talents that many HPC student leaders possess. Dr. Jacob Martinson, president of the college, has already been informed of the idea and approves of it, according to Sistrunk. Organization of the project is underway.

However, the best way to get a real taste of the weekend is to hear it from the people who were there:

"I want to move there and live there forever."

"Like to do it again. I hope we can apply what we learned."

"It was cool to deal with the Dean on an informal basis." "I always knew Hotz was full of baloney."

"It was good interacting with people you never see."

"It had a lot of what everyone needed... well organized... I thought it was effective."

Phil Key, head of the planning committee for the retreat:
"People participated well and acted like they were glad they went. Our group sessions were especially effective."

Dr. Sistrunk:

"The Leadership Retreat is an example of the developmental activities we in the office of Student Life wnant to do more of . I hope the organizations can be improved significantly with the identification of specific needs by the students— our office will begin immediately to address these concerns."

Phoenix Festival 'Was Terrific'!

A.B. Billings
Assistant Editor

"It was terrific!" said Marion Hodge about the Phoenix XV Literary Festival held Friday, November 15, at High Point College.

Hodge, who led the workshop for students who did not submit work for the festival, said that the two poetry readings were good and that the workshops went well. "The readers aere personable. The things that they read were well-chosen for the audience," "There was a lot of humor, which is always good."

"I thought the workshop leaders tried to be human, kind and generous, as well as educational," said Hodge.

Jim Clark, of the University of North Carolina a Greensboro and fiction workshop leader, was very impresed at "how helpful the students were to other students."

John Moehlmann was in charge of the festival and said the he "heard only positive things about the workshops." Moehlmann also said that he was very pleased with the turnout. "We had 175 high school students and a few HPC students," said Moehlmann.

There were 21 high schools represented, five of which had never attended before. There were 250 poetry submissions and over 50 short fiction submissions, according to Mochlmann

"By and large, I felt that the quality of the poetry was as good as it's been in any year, and, perhaps, even a little better." said Moehlmann.

The thing that struck me about the stories, as much as the fine techniques, was how much these students were struggling with some of the 'whys' in their lives, and the effort to come to some answer about nuclear war, the break-up of the family and the cruelty of people who hurt others in trying somehow to struggle with that, 'y said Clark.

"I thought that the quality of the high school poetry was superior to what I'd read in past festivals," said Hodge. "Superior because the people seemed to have a clearer sense of what they were doing and what is asked of the modern poet, a surer sense of the modern idiom."

At the end of the day prizes were awared in both genres, poetry and fiction, at both levels, high school and college. At the college level Anthony Billings won first place in fiction, and John Savas won second place. In poetry Judie Perry won first place, John Savas won second place, and Wendy Tag, Judie Perry, and Wendy Tag, Judie Perry, and Honorable Mentions from HDPC

At the high school level, Catherine Sustana, of Bishop McGuinnis, won first place in fiction; Donna Collins, of Chapel Hill High School, won second place; and Pamela Stevens, of Southern High School; Laura Sturm, of Greensboro Day School; Carolina Barr, Durham Academy; and John Huggins. Southeastern Jr. High School won Honorable Mentions. Rhea Simpson, East Montgomery, won first place in poetry, and Kelly Link, Greensboro Day School, won second place. Paulanne Cagle, Montgomery; East Susie Greene, East Montgomery: Weena Perry, Ahoski High School; Jonathan Avery, Durham Academy; and Glenn Lissner, High Point Central High School won Honorable Mentions.

John Savas, of HPC, won the Thomas Walters Award for Literary Achievement for his "outstanding work in writing," according to Moehlmann.

Moehlmann was very optimistic for the future. "Our reputation is spreading and, from what I hear, it's being justified," Moehlmann said.

Clark said that he wished that he had been able to attend a festival like the Phoenix when he was young. "If I had ad something like this when I was a young writer in high school and college, I wouldn't have struggled so much, not knowing what I was doing," said Clark.

Clark added that he enjoyed the festival as much as the students did. He was also glad that he was given the chance to read the fiction. "Reading these stories has been quite an education," Clark said.

Clark summed up the feelings of most of the high school teachers and students when he said, "I enjoyed it a lot!"

Ratt, Bon Jovi Rock Coliseum

Joe Hutchins

Two heavy metal rock-n-roll bands invaded the Greensboro Coliseum in an explosive concert on Sunday, Nov. 3, 1985.

The show began with the opening group Bon-Jovi, who only performed for a disappointing 45 minutes. The flashy lead singer, Jon Bon Jovi, put on an excellent stage show, bringing the audience to it's feet for the entire performance. The crowd was electrified as the band sang such hit songs as "Runaway," "In and Out of Love," and "Only Lonely." However, the rest of the songs they sang were not very popular. Nonetheless, the audience didn't mind just as long as the music was loud and hard-driving. Overall, the main attraction proved to be the captivating lead singer, who kept every female screaming frantically.

After a 30-minute intermisison, the so-called headlining band, Ratt, burst onto stage in a thunderous cloud of smoke. They assumed their positiions as the crowd roared their approval. They began what was to be a two-hour concert with the song, "Wanted Man." They sang two more songs before the arrogant lead singer. Stephen Pearcy, acknowledged the audience using obscence and suggestive language. This profanity progressed throughout the course of the concert, finally leading to Pearcy pouring beef from a stage platform onto the audience below. Despite Pearcy's distasteful actions, the rest of the band performed with great showmanship.

The remainder of Ratt is comprised of Warren DeMartini on lead guitar, Robbin Crosby playing rythym guitar, Juan Croucier on bass guitar, and Bobby Blotzer on the Halfway through the concert, the band performed a musical interlude in which each member of the band soloed on their respective instruments.

The highlight was Bobby Blotzer on drums. He pounded away for approximately 15 minutes, sending each beat echoing throughout the Coliseum. Even though he is an excellent musician, his excessive instrumental piece appeared to calm the audience to some extent. After each band member had their place on center stage, Rauf, together sang a number of hits in which the audience responded to with admiration. The concert ended with a two song encore which included two songs off their new album, "Invasion of Your Privacy." The songs being, "Lay It Down," and "Give It All."

The concert was excellent as a whole, even though Bon Jovi did not meet up to expectations. One must appreciate this type of rock-n-roll music in order to enjoy a concert of this guality.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

The Alpha Gamma Delta Gamma Eta's have had a very rewarding and exciting week. The sisters and pledges held a football game at Montlieu Elementary School on Nov. 2. The sister's victory of 21-14 was celebrated with the pledges in a mud wrestling excursion. With the support of our new advisor, Dr. Blumer, and the spectators, the game was made into a special day.

Our pledges were presented at our Pledge Dance at the Greensboro Marriott Hotel on Nov. 8. The "Las Vegas Night" them made the night a gambling adventure. The sisters and pledges would like to thank our dates for making the night a memorable experience.

We would like to congratulate two Alpha Gams on their candlelights: Lisa Helmus who was lavaliered to Walt Hunter (Delta Sigma Phi) and Kelli Green's engagement to Artie Michial (Lambda Chi Alpha).

The Alpha Gamma Deltas are looking forward to Christmas caroling at a luncheon held at the Radisson Hotel for one-hundred elderly persons sponsored by the USOA.

We are proud of Janet Temple, Assistant Director and Stage Manager, and Sarah Wenley who will be appearing in "Old Man Joseph and Family." We would like also to thank four of our sisters who attended the Leadership Retreat at Camp Caraway, Our pledges hosted a theme party for the sisters on Nov. 13. The sisters would like to thank all the pledges for their time and effort.

PHI MU

The Alpha Gamma Delta ledge Dance was held at the amma Eta's have had a very warding and exciting week. he sisters and pledges held a med wine glasses from the probabll seame at Montiles.

Phi Mu is presently sponsoring an eight-year-old girl through the Christian Children's Fund. Her name is Malita and she is from Zambia. The sorority's donations help to provide clothes, food, and education for Malita.

The sorority is having a great time watching and playing Intramural volleyball. There are two teams again this year, the Phi Team and the Moo Team.

A special congratulations to a newly lavaliered couple, Bonnie Hannah and Gregg Thompson (Theta Chi).

KAPPA DELTA

The Kappa Delta Sorority had a busy start in November. On Nov. 2 they held a successful pledge dance at the Top of the Mart. The theme for the dance was "This Night Will Last Forever."

On Nov. 6 the chapter held a workshop on dieting. Lynn Silverman, a dietician, was the spokesperson.

During the weekend of the 15-17 a National Officer visited the sorority. That same weekend the sisters and pledges worked the concession stand at the Field Hockey

ZETA TAU ALPHA

Intramurals have started off well for the Zetas. After defeating the Independent team last week, the Zeta I socret team met the KDs for the championship game on Sunday. It was a very competitive and evenly matched game, but with the only score coming from Trudy McDonald, the Zetas were able to pull it off with a close 1-0 victory. Volleyball is beginning this week, so, if you get a chance, come out and support the women's intramural program.

Last Saturday night the Zetas held their first dance of the year at Willow Creek Country Club. It was a dance in honor of the new pledges and everyone had a great time. On Saturday, the 16th, the Zetas and Pikas traveled to Winthrop for a mixer with the Zetas and Pikas attending college there.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

The month of November has started off to be very busy for the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity as we prepare last semester's associate members for brotherhood.

The Lambda Chi's were the first place winners in the Purple and White Banner contest. The prize was a pool party at the YMCA.

We are all looking forward to our Christmas Dance which is planned for December 13. It will be held at the West Market Hilton in Greensboro.

Danny Hogue and Kim Idol who were recently lavaliered.
Also, congratulations to

DELTA SIGMA PHI

The Delta Sig's enjoyed a good beginning in November. The intramural soccer term beat Team X 1-0 in a hard fought game.

It was a good weekend on the Sig Hall for a change. Some friends and alumni stopped by. There was one black spot, however, as Shaun Doughtery paid a visit to one of the rooms.

The Sigs are currently busy planning a Christmas Party and we are also looking forward to our traditional Pledge-Brother Football Game. Good luck to Men's hasketball teams. Congratulations to Kim Maness for making All-Tournament at the District Play-offs and a big congratulations to Brother Hunter on his recent candlelight for Lisa Helmus.

The brothers of Theta Chi fraternity would like to congratulate Gregg Thompson who was recently lavaliered to Bonnie Hannah (Phi Mu).

The Theta Chi's are presently organizing a mixer with the Alpha Chi's at UNC-Greensboro for early December.

Our pledges are selling raffle tickets for a dinner for two at Act 1 for 50¢ each. Transportation will be provided. They will be sold until Thanksgiving break.

Calendar Highlights Girls of HPC

Jon Travis

The Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity is the sponsor of 'The Women of High Point College Calendar' which is currently on sale for $4 each.

The calendar consists of 13 coeds. Kevin Markham, a junior from Gladys, Virginia, began working on it last February. He said the idea for the calendar or innated one day when, "We were sitting in the cafeteria, upholding our reputation of looking at the girls and talking about them and we thought, hey, let's do a calendar for a fundraiser. From there, we wrote down ine names of the girls we thought were good looking. We had proofs of 18 different girls made and chose 31 of those which we thought were the best. The process of putting the calendar together was a very long one and without the help of Chris Shuping and others it would have been impossible to do."

When ask how it felt to be in a calendar, Donna Scherp (Miss May), a junior from Basking Ridge, N.J. responded, "I felt honored that Lamboa Chi Alpha wanted me to be in it. I was excited because I never thought I would get a chance to be in a calendar. "It was a lot of fun." Kim Idol (Miss July), a sophomore from Winston-Salem, stated, "I was surprised to be picked. "I was surprised to be picked. Ididn't thin! I was an obvious person," said Carol Marotta (Miss August), a sophomore from South Brunswick, NJ.

Students like Pete Cockburn, a junior, said he thought the calendar was okay, but not great. If it had been in color it would have

Brenda Hovis, a sophomore stated, "The calendar is a good idea, but next year I would like to see a "Men of High Point College" calendar.

High Point College' calendar.

Mr. Markham stated that,
"The calendars are moving really well. They are being sold not only at the college, but at local book and record stores here, in Winston and Greensboro."

"Next year we hope to open our market to the girls also. We're open to suggestions. Let us know what you think of

Soccer Team Ends Season No. 2

The High Point College soccer team's season ended Veterans Day on the field at Catawba College in Salisbury, NC., with a 3-0 loss to Carolina Conference and District 26 Champions Catawba College.

Nothing seemed to go in favor of the Panthers during the game. Just four minutes and forty-nine seconds into the game, Gary Hewett was called for a handball inside the penalty box, giving the Indians a penalty kick. HPC goalie, Sal Schiavone, guessed Kevin Sloan would kick the ball to his right, but instead Sloan went for the upper left corner to make it a quick 1-0 Catawba lead.

The score remained that way until four minutes into the second half when George Hunt scored on a pass from Sloan about five feet from the goal. Jim Diem made it 3-0 ten minutes later and that is the way it would end.

Coach Woody Gibson of HPC said about the game. "They just didn't play as well as they could have played. Anytime you play a quality team you have got to play as well as you can. Also it is tough coming back from a quick 1-0 deficit in any tournament game.

The Panthers did finish second in the district tournament after they were predicted to end fourth. Doug Brandon, a sophomore halfback, said, "With a lot of young guys that will be back next year it gives everybody experience, since we were supposed to finish fourth, it's positive we ended number two."

The game against Elon was in Coach Gibson's eves "the best match of the year, and the first half probably the most intense." HPC played Elon to a 0-0 match earlier this year.

Junior Joe "Weegee" Crupi scored the only goal of the Elon game just sixteen minutes and twelve seconds into the first half. For Weegee it was his first goal of the year. "I was so frustrated that I finally got one, it was a great time to score but it just took so long." The shot was from about 40 feet out into the upper left corner just out of the reach of the Elon goalie, Ed Rackly.

For the year, the Panthers ended with a record of twelve wins, six loses, and two ties. Second in the district, and third in the Conference.

their opponents of the year. 30-13. While Junior goalie Sal Schiavone recorded twelve shutouts on the year. Coach Gibson added, "Sal had an incredible year, (he) was the most consistent player, game after game, than anybody on the team." But Senior, fullback. Phil Valente, however, was selected to both the all-district and allconference first teams.

Most of the team felt the offensive production was off from past years. Lawter, a Sophomore striker, stated, "As a team we played better, but we still could have scored more often. We had the notential " Coach Gibson added, "Sporadic is the word. The offense never really clicked like they did a year ago. Last year we would go into games knowing we would score. This year it seemed we went in with the idea in our minds we weren't going to score."

But as the old Brooklyn Dodger fans used to say "wait 'till next year." With only two players expected to graduate (Fullbacks Stu Shilling, second on the team in scoring with five goals and four assists, and Phil Valente) from this year's team Coach Gibson is looking forward to next year.

Honors Given To Trogdon, Ismael

Joe Hutchins Staff Writer

Debbie Trogdon, women's head volleyball coach at High Point College, and team leader Cynthia Ismael both received district honors last week.

Trogdon was named the district coach of the year. She led the lady Panthers to an 8-0 record in the conference, and 14-1 in the district. The HPC women were 18-5 overall. This was Trogdon's first year as the head coach at High Point College. She was earlier named the Carolina's Conference coach of the year.

Cynthia Ismael, the senior captain of the HPC women's volleyball team, was named the district player of the year. Ismael in her first three seasons at HPC, was a threetime All-Conference, All-District player. She was also voted most valuable player of the Carolina's Conference tournament twice. This year was no exception. Not only has she been named the district player of the year, but she also was named earlier as the Carolina's Conference player of the year. Ismael, who is from Bolivia, has been a vital aspect of the HPC volleyball program since her enrollment in 1982

The coaching ability of Debbie Trogdon combined with the excellent leadership of Cynthia Ismael, and exceptional team talent, propelled HPC women's volleyball team through quite a commendable, winning season for the lady Panthers.

Batthany feels that aerobics is a great form of exercise. She sees it as a great way to vent the stress that is associated with college life.

The sessions are one hour long. This includes a warmup, the aerobic exercise, toning, and a cool down. Batthany encourages individuals to work out at their own pace.

Everyone in the High Point College community is invited to participate. The sessions are free and co-ed. In Batthany's own words, "We're just there to have fun."

Luck and determination were two factors contributing to senior Gary Clark's success at the recent Job Fair that took place in Winston-Salem.

Clark decided at the last minute to attend the Job Fair on Tuesday, inappropriately dressed and without a resume. Despite being unprepared, Clark impressed the representatives enough to set up interviews for the following day.

"Gary's 'luck' had more to do with his skill in talking to people, his assertiveness, and his own smiling personality,' said Joyce Wainer, of Career Development.

On Wednesday, Clark went to the Job Fair dressed appropriately, with a resume he prepared the previous evening. He attended the interviews he had scheduled the day before. In addition, Clark decided to stay the entire day, interviewing with companies that announced "no shows." Clark was the first to raise his hand as soon as the companies announced they had an opening in their schedule

As a result, Clark got a job offering, and an invitation to dinner by one of the recruiters.

"The moral of this story, said Wainer, "is that through Gary's ingenuity, willingness to take risks, and use of his pleasant, smiling personality, he was able to succeed in a way many students would never have even considered."

Because of his experience. Clark was asked by Wainer to speak at the Assertiveness Workshop on Nov. 7. Wainer felt that Clark could help other students realize how they can use their assertive skills in obtaining desired results.

Out of the eight colleges and universities represented at the Job Fair, HPC had the third largest attendance of students who participated. HPC had a total of 70 students take advantage of the opportunities the Job Fair had to offer.

Accident Caused By Missing Stop Sign

Lisa Mann Staff Writer

Because of a stop sign being removed at the intersection of Montlieu Avenue and West College Drive, an accident occurred on Oct. 9, according to Ed Cannady, Head of Campus Safety.

At approximately II:30 a.m. a woman, unfamiliar with the High Point area, was driving south on West College Drive. The stop signs had been removed at the intersection and, according to Cannady, the woman thought she had the right-of-way. She struck the right rear side of a car heading towards town on Montlieu Avenue, causing the stricken car to crash into a telephone pole.

Regional Hospital where he was treated for cracked ribs and a broken wrist. According to Cannady, the man is now in satisfactory condition.

"Thank goodness the man was wearing a seatbelt," said Cannady, "otherwise he would be in a much more critical condition."

According to Cannady, approximately eleven signs have been taken around campus, including several warning and no parking signs. "I'm not trying to point the finger at High Point College students," says Cannady, "We have a super bunch of students and I don't think this is something they would be involved in.

So far there are no leads to the person or persons involved in the removal of the street signs. Cannady hopes students will let Campus Safety know if

Problems Inherited

Maintenance Buckles Down

John Higgins Special to the Hi-Po

Tony Baity Special to the Hi-Po

A.B. Billings Assistant Editor

The following is part two of the story behind the recent problems concerning the Maintenance Department.

"These problems are things that the Maintenance Department has inherited," said Ram Miller, Director of Residence Life and Student Activities, of the recent difficulties affecting campus maintenance.

A recent report was released by Miller's office, which stated some of the difficulties the Maintenance Department is facing. One of the problems, Miller sees, is staffing in the maintenance and custodial areas. "It think we need to take a real strong look and see if we're staffed sufficiently to just take care of the day-to-day maintenance," Miller said.

"Absenteeism, I understand, is another problem," said Miller. "And it's not an unusual problem in both the maintenance and custodial areas."

Belk and Millis Dormitories have had problems with condensation formed by open windows allowing warm air to hit cold pipes in the summer, and cold air to hit hot pipes in the winter. "Those problems are the result of deferred maintenance," Miller said.

Senior Ted Coryell, SGA president, who lives in Belk, has dealt with the problem longer than anyone, according to him. "I've lived with it going on two years now, Corye said. "It leaked all last year and it's been leaking since August."

Coryell said he reported the leak "at least twenty-five times since August."

The leak has caused considerable damage. "It leaked on my bed, ruined two pillows and a fitted sheet," Coryell said. "I've had to move my bed three times and it's still leaking on me."

Coryell said that Maintenance hasn't been very helpful. "Is it condensation or plumbing?! was their reply," said Coryell. "It's as if I have to diagnose my own problem."

While Belk tackles its condensation, the residents of North and Yadkin Dormitories battle a collapsed ceiling. Amy Routon said, "The ceiling over the two toilets close to the door in the bathroom fell in because of water coming down from the showers above."

Routon said she reported the problem "many times."

"The first time they fixed it, they just put a board over the ceiling, but the water kept dripping," she said. "And, finally, the board go so wet it collapsed also."

Routon said that this leak was affecting both the first and second floors. Ram Miller believes that one of the overall problems could be a lack of campus pride.

"It's a two-way street." Miller said. "It's extremely frustrating to our maintenance and custodial personnel because they do take pride in what they do."

"These are custodians: they aren't personal maids," Miller said. "We need to clean up after ourselves just like we would at home. That's the man part of our Resident Advisor and Resident Counselor, training - promoting a sense of community pride."

"The only way we'll be able to tackle the problems with inconsiderate students and students who create malicious damage is for the majority of students to bring that minority up to an acceptable level of conduct," Miller said.

Miller believes that improvements can be made in Maintenance-Student relations. "Maintenance and custodial operations are most often taken for granted. It's a thankless job, and that needs to be worked on," he said.

$150,000 Spent

Over the summer, maintenance did make close to $150,000 worth of repairs to campus buildings. According to Jack Roser, head of HPC's maintenance department, Belk dorm received extensive work over the summer.

"We put down new carpet, bought new furniture for the rooms, hung new drapes and painted the entire building," said Roser. "Now, that is just the work that was done this summer. We plan to, sometime in the near future, tear out the phone lines and replace them with new ones. Also, there are plans to solve the condensation problem.

"The college has approved a plan to change all of the air moving units in all of the dorms' air systems. We are having some metal trays built which will be inserted under the air moving units to catch the water which is, at the present time, running down the pipes when it condenses. The process will take about 18 months to complete. Then, once the process is complete, we will put in new drop ceilings and insulation. It will take us about a week more to put in the ceilings and insulation," said Roser.

Maintenance also did extensive work in the other dorms and buildings over the summer.

 Yadkin received new carpeting, the bathrooms get new lavatories and the showers were tiled to match the floor.

 Wesley and North received a new roof, new tile showers costing $13,000, remounted fire extinguishers and new plumbing fixtures. The cost of the plumbing fixtures for each of the three bathrooms was about $2,500.

• Women's received a plan for a new electrical system which calls for some of the walls to be torn out and rebuilt, possible reworking of the dorn's heating and air systems (money allotment is pending) and an outside chance the dorn will receive its own phone system. The dorn did receive a new emergency lighting system. The bulk of the dorn's future work is planned to be done next summer.

 McCulloch received minimal work since there are plans to replace the present dorm with a new building.

 The Fine Arts building received new tile for the hall and room floors.

 The chapel was repainted and recarpeted.

 Millis received the most work done over the summer. The building's cast iron plumbing was replaced, the air conditioning system was upgraded, the rooms were repainted, and the water pipes were replaced.

For at least 20 years "Playboy" has been the voice of opinion for each generation it has represented. It is geared toward the 20-35 year-old sector of the country and has reflected the thoughts, views, and opinions of that age group since its inception. It has also published some of the finest fiction by the best writers of our time, and presented interviews with the most controversial newsmakers.

Before long the residents of North Carolina will have to drive 100 miles to get it. And all because of the nude women. In recent months "Playboy" has even begun to downplay the importance of these pictorials. Under consideration is the movement of the famous centerfold to the back of the magazine and cutting its three pictorials per month to only two, including the "centerfold." ## Books Prove Poetry Still Alive

Marion Hodge Special to the Hi-Po

Ezra Pound was to Yeas, to Frost "il miglior fabbro" -- the better maker—as Eliot terms him in the dedication of "The Waste Land." Pound made the poetry of the age. He scraped the Victorian syrup from poetry and made it modern, made it lean and tough, made it new. Let there be sinew! gristle! grit!

When I was asked to review two anthologies of poetry, I was afraid I wouldn't find any Poundian sinew in them. But it is there.

Indeed, editorial standards are lax. Kay M. Dozier, editor of "Songs for All Seasons" (Green Valley Publishing, Knoxville, Iowa, 1985) puts tripe and mysterious fine song side by side. Here's the first stanza of a piece of absolute junk:

Thanksgiving is a special day,

a festive time for all;

there is turkey, dressing, and apple pie let's share, who shall we call?

Abutted to that drivel is a wonderfully suggestive poem called "Evil Thoughts" by one Heather Beard:

Pastors would say they were my enemies

And as a child I feared them

Excluding them from my parties Stopping them dead in their tracks

If they cried

They cried in silence.

Dozier seems to have no biases about form, either. She prints traditional-sounding verse, such as this:

You built the wall around me that I'' let no one in.

You built the shell around me that I'm so far drawn in.

railing down on flying sheets in

Mrs. O'Malley's backyard.

Most of the poems in "Songs for All Seasons" seem to be written by desparing youth and the naive, whatever their age:

I speechlessly

Scream through

Inky alleys.

I would like to tell you about the Phoenix XV Festival. I, for one, had a wonderful time. It was a great learning experience for me. The workshops I attended were very helpful and the readings were entertaining and helpful as well.

I aided Dr. Moehlmann in many aspects in that I put the booklets together and ran errands for him on the day of the festival. That is not to say that I deserve any commendation for my effort. On the con-

Mr. President, you're the best

Since Washington and Lincoln.

The natural passions of the seasons are found throughout the book, but invariably they are expressed abstractly, as if the writer has discovered them for the first time:

Each year the season brings new faith, New answers to life's mysterles.

This poem, by the way, and this is typical, too, does not tell us what those "answers" are.

What has already been said about "Songs for All Seasons" can be said about "From the Heart of a Poet" (Hieroglyphics Press, Maggie Valley, N.C., 1985). If anything, the poems are more sententious, self-conscious:

Wonderful how things turn out,

As they did for me and you. Remember this for all your life;

Dear darling, I love you.

But the themes and the expression of them are common, the very existence of all these poems—there must be 500 poems in the two volumes—is cause for celebration. In an age of plastic, it is easy to despair, to think that one labors alone, and to feel that one's work is not appreciated. These volumes show that we writer.

one's work is not appreciated. These volumes show that we writers are not alone, that many others are working alongside us to see the world and the self clearly. Such volumes as these show that poetry is still a vigorous force.

Even more exciting is the presence of poems by one of our students, Anthony Billings.

Anthony's poem in "From the Heart of a Poet" is "The Best Part," which he considers the old idea that each of us plays many roles but that the best part, the best role, is the one "we play from the heart." Playing from the heart may not solve many problems, finally, because of the heart, as Yeats put it, if often a "foul rag-and-bone shop," but being oneself would be a beginning. Too often we pretend there is no foulness in ourselves.

The more interesting poem of Anthony's, and the better, more controlled, is "No Heaven, No Hell' in "Songs for All Seasons."

There is a satisfying strangeness in this poem. The reader is apparently being made privy to the thoughts of a dead man for whom death is not an end, but rather "The beginning of a new life." The outside world, our sensuous world, no longer has any meanine. but still the man lives by becoming a force in the ground itself: "But in that land of my blood will be as the roisin-/Racing red and hot..." This existence has nothing to do will radditional reward and pounishment. Its "reality" is that of the dream, the vision of poet, the bard; it "lies deep in the eyes of the Harp-strummer"

For the reader burdened with flatness of imagistic realism and the fluffiness of unreined feeling-with most of the poems in these books-Anthony's poem attracts by being unsual, uncommon, in its diction, its theme, and its mood.

Editor's Note: roisin—Gaelic for rose.

trary, I wish to commend Dr. Moehlmann on the time and effort he put forth to make the festival the success that it was.

He began planning for the festival as soon as the fall semester began and at a point two weeks before the festival, he put the greater part of his personal time into the planning of the festival.

I do not believe that it would be too forward for me to suggest an official letter of commendation and thanks to show the appreciation of the institution.

I learned through a series of interviews that the workshop leaders also enjoyed the festival as much as, if not more than, the students who attended. It was through Dr. Moehlmann's efforts alone that we were able to enjoy such good, learned writers and teachers as Jim Clark, Karen Helgeson, and Eric Weil. ## Safety Officials Recruit on Campus

Deena McMurtry Editor

On Dec. 5, recruiters from the Police and Fire departments of Winston-Salem interviewed High Point College students.

Sgt. Donnie Diamont from the Police Department and Sgt. Thomas Canter from the fire department were present at the recruiting session. According to them, the police departments are in the middle of a big drive to recruit college students.

According to Diamont, the police department offers "a very challenging program." Students who are recruited will be trained for six months and then sowrn in as a Public Safety Offical. Diamont explained that these officers will have the regular duties of a police officer, but will carry fire protective clothes with them in their patrol car.

"If a police officer is not tied up on a police related matter, then they will be sent to a fire call in their area," said Diamont. "Our people spend about 95% of their time on police matters and 5% on fire

Qualities that the recruiters are looking for in a student,

according to Canter, are sincerity, and level-headedness. Canter explained that an officer must be able to get along with all people.

"Because of the nature of the work and the work schedule, a police officer must be able to adapt well to any given situation," said Canter. Individuals interested in becoming Public Safety Officers must meet these state and local requirements:

- · Be a United States citizen · Be at least 21 years old
- · Be of good moral character; not have been convicted of a felony, serious misdemeanor or an offense in-
- volving moral turpitude · Be a high school graduate
- · Must have or be able to obtain a valid North Carolina driver's lisense
- · Become a Forsyth County resident within 180 days after
- employment Be capable of passing a physical agility test
- · Have uncorrected vision of at least 20/40; correctable to 20/20.

Four of HPC's students were present for the interviews. Diamont said that the Police Department plans to hire 30 applicants to begin training in June. Applications will be processed in January.

HPC Students Awarded Scholarships

Three High Point College students have been named as 1985-86 recipients of "Allen S. Bloom Memorial Scholarships" awarded by the Southern Home Furnishings Association.

Those receiving the scholarships, which total $500 each, are Linda Bulla, a senior from High Point, N.C.; Kim Moose, a junior from High Point; and Loy Sherrill, a senior from Conover, N.C. All are Home Furnishings Marketing majors.

The scholarships, which were originally established in 1980, are presented annually in the memory of Bloom, a member of the SHFA Education Committee who was instrumental in stimulating interest in High Point College's Home Furnishings Marketing Program, the only one of its kind in the country.

Students who receive the scholarships are selected by the Scholarship Committee of the college in cooperation with the chairman of High Point College's Earl N. Phillips School of Business.

New Doctors In The House

Two High Point College professors have recently completed their doctoral education. Paul Lundrigan will receive his Ph.D in theatre, in May 1986. Lyman Rickard received his degree in chemistry this past August.

Paul Lundrigan

Mr. Lundrigan will receive his degree from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, where he was in residence from 1975 until 1979. On Nov. 20, of this year, Lundrigan went back to SIU for his final test.

Lyman Rickard

Dr. Rickard has received his Ph.D from the Florida Institute of Technology in Melborne. He was in residence there during the summers of 1979 to 1981. Rickard completed his dissertation at North Carolina State this year.

Turner Electrifies Greensboro

Deena McMurtry

Dynamic, electrifying, energetic Tina Turner graced the Greensboro Coliseum stage on Nov. 23 and belted out sounds to a packed house of screaming fans.

In a word, Tina's show was fantastic! The production was good, her band members were good, and Tina was great! As she came out on the stage she yelled, "Creensboro -- Are Your Ready For Me?!" The crowd went wiid!

A huge screen located above the stage added tremendously to Tina's show. Before she appeared on the stage, the screen showed close-ups of her getting ready in her dressing room. The camera moved from her brushing on lipstick, to teasing her hair, and then to her putting on shoes and exploding powerfully onstage.

Anyone has to have respect for a woman close to the age of 50 who can dance, jump, run and twirl around for two hours with endless, vibrant engery. At one point in the show she screamed, "People ask me when I'm going to slow down!" Tina paused, lowered her voice and said, "I'm just getting started!"

In her tremendous voice Tina sang most of her hits off the recent Private Dancer Album such as "We Don't Need Another Hero,"
"You Better Be Good To Me," and "Private Dancer."
To a pleased audience she even sang several older hits by various artists such as,
"Proud Mary," and "Help."

Twice Tina involved the audience by asking them to sing along with her. During her hit. "What's Love Got To Do With It." Tina told the women in the audience to get the "right attitude" before singing along with her. "Men have been saying "What's love got to do with it' for years," said Tina. "Now it's our turn!"

Tina's saxophone player attracted much of his own attention as he twisted and jerked his highly muscular anatomy on stage. "How do you like this girls?" asked Tina as she introduced him.

Tina's piano player was also an asset to her show as he used his incredible voice to back her up on vocals and accompanied her during a few numbers.

Even the guest band, Mr. Mister was a hit with the audience as they sang their top 10 hit, "Broken Wings."

Overall, the whole evening was a success. Tina's excitement spilled over into the audience, who, for only two songs, sat in their seats while she sang. The rest of the time they were dancing, singing and trying to put forth half as much energy as Tina.

"Old Man Joseph" With Spontaneity, Freshness

Lora Songster

Old Man Joseph and His Family, by Romulus Linney, is a play that takes place in the world of the Apocryphal Gospels. It was performed Gospels. It was performed to the Empty Space Theatre. The response to the play was very positive. It would be unfair to single out one or two of the thespians to commend. The entire cast is worthy of recognition.

Tim Austin, Joseph, who came to us from UNC-G, we have seen here before. He most recently was in Heaven Can Wait and Scrooge last year. Austin is an incredible talent who portrayed an oldman without the usual comical inimicry that accompanies such a part. Old Man Joseph was not a character for Austin he was an old man.

was not a character to Austin, he was an old man. Seema Qubein, Mary, played the traditional Mary in a not so traditional play. She convinced the audience that she, as a teenager, would prefer to marry an eight-nine year old rather than a "hot boy" her age. Qubein's physical appearance fit the stereotype of Mary.

Pam McHone, who we have seen many times before on the HPC stage, did not disappoint the audience. From a whistledat sign holder to a blushing bride she portrayed her characters well.

Mike Reid's facial expressions sold the audience on each of his characters. His delivery of lines had appropriate timing and proved to propriate timing are be very funny. Rich Molinaro, who transferred from HPC to UNC-G, looked much at home in his New York Met T-shirt, as well as the leather jacket and the dress jacket. Molinaro, who has appeared in several HPC productions, does his character's justice.

Gregg Thompson played the parts of a mule, a transevestite, a beggar and Jesus. The transformation of this was complete and well done. He caputured the confusion of Jesus. He and Molinaro complimented each other very well in the end of the play as friends.

Bruce Tyrrell was most enjoyable in this role as the helpless school teacher, His role, High Priest, whose mumbo jumbo would help Mary to find a husband, started the audience's laughter that continued through the entire play.

Betsey Driver and Sarah Wenley played complimenting parts, and did so most effectively. They were perfect onesided, narrow-minded

Jill Walker, the dove, the woman of the sheets, the voice of baby Jesus, and the clothdyer, like the others fit herself into the various and different molds of her In keeping with the tradition of the Greek Chorus, Charles Birkner, Beth Summerville, and Cathy Demchak, accompanied on guitar by Sid Colins, provided not only a diversion from the set changes, but they gave an exposition to the play. The trio's voices blended in their accompanied and a cappella numbers very well. The music was arranged by Alexa Jackson Schlimmer.

The blocking, with the exception of the synchoronized glances, did not look overly rehearsed. Rather, it looked very spontaneous. The set which consisted of scattered wooden boxes, (which served various purposes), a fabric backdrop with green and red embellishments, was simple. This added to the play by not overwhelming the audience with detail.

Romulus Linney certainly created a different kind of Christmas play. We are told the nativity story year after year and it is never really easy to believe in such an abstract concept as immaculate conception. As Joseph says, "Virgins don't get pregnant." Linney shows us the humanity of these characters. Joseph swears, tries to beat up a man who he believes to be an angel, and does not believe his son is divine. They are realistic feelings and actions thrown into an idealistic story.

Ron Law, director, and his assistant Janet Temple, did a marvelous job with their ac-

Lessons and Carols Presented Beautifully

Lora Songster

An Advent Procession of Lessons and Carols was presented to the High Point College community on Dec. 4. This tradition is based on the festival Lessons and Carols observed at King's College Chapel in Cambridge, England.

This program consisted of New Testament readings, and prayers given by members of the faculty, the student body and the administration.

The HPC Singers and the Chapel Choir, directed by Alexa Jackson Schlimmer and accompanied by Marcia Dills, sang selections from their Christmas concert. Soloists included students Beth Summerville, Michael Farley, Cind Gleiser, Libby Johnson (Vocal and Piano), Scott Mickey (Trumpet), as well as Alexa Jackson Schlimmer, instructor of Music, and Josef English Walker, chanel organist

Participating in the readings were Dr. Jacob Martinson, Jr.; Dr. James M. Adams; Mrs. Karen H. Bowles; Mr. Ted Coryell; Mrs. Jane Burton; Mrs. Kay Stroud; Dr. John E. Ward, Jr.; Ms. Alicia Wright; Mr. William F. Cope; Mr. Cletus H. Kruyer; Dr. Susan N. McCrary and Rev. Ben Curry.

Following the recessional hymn, the audience and performers gathered around the Christmas tree placed in front of the Smith Library. The tree was decorated by the residents of Womens and Wesley dorms. The luminaries placed outside the chapel and surrounding the tree were furnished by the Panhellenic Council.

Comment: The music was beautiful and the readings were inspirational, but I have to admit that what I enjoyed the most was admiring the decorations created by Mr. Rob Sale and Mr. Ira Carter, HPC horticulturists. The greenery adorned with red bows and sparkling lights were only matched by the reflection of the candlelight on the stained glass windows. The atmosphere of the Chas. E. Haworth Sr. Memorial Chapel was beautiful, festive and reverent simultaneously. BRAVO! Take a bow gentlemen. You are definitely appreciated.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

The Gamma Eta's of Alpha Gamma Delta are in the holi-day spirits as our plans for the annual Christmas Party and New Year's Dance are underway. To celebrate our spirit we donated a basket of canned food and cash to a needy family in the area for Thanksgiving. All of the Gams enjoyed their holiday a lot more knowing that they made someone elses special.

The Alpha Gams are all prepared to Christmas carol for the elderly at the Third Annual United Services of Older Adults Christmas Dinner. We baked cookies to put in the Christmas bags that are being decorated by children in the area. The bags are a donation from AGD for the socially limited elderly in the community.

A football mixer was held with Pi Kappa Alpha on Nov. 24 Everyone had a great time and no one is really sure if the game was ever finished.

We had an Ice Skating escapade on Dec. 4 at Carolina Circle Mall, and our pledge/sister retreated to Hanging Rock on Dec. 7.

The Ålpha Gams would like to congratulate Jeanne Davis for being selected for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Congratulations also to Shari Campbell and Amy Rowton for being selected and playing in the National Field Hockey Tourament in Norfolk, Va during Thanksgiving break.

We would like to wish everyone a very safe and Merry Christmas and hope that the New Year of 1986 will be your best yet.

PHI MU

On Dec. 18, the Phi Mu's will be caroling at the High Point Presbyterian Nursing Home for Chapter Develop-

The Phi and Moo teams are enjoying intramural volley-ball. The Phi team is 5-1, and the Moo team is 3-2.

The Phi's in the sorority are selling carnations to earn money for the annual Phi Surprise Party that they give to the sisters second semester.

Congratulations to Liz Dercksen, Bonnie Hannah, and Jennifer Palmer for being invited into the Theta Chi Little Sisters Organization.

The Sisters and Phis of Phi Mu Fraternity would like to wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year! We love you ALL!

KAPPA DELTA

The KDs were proud to have three members involve in the HPC play "Old Man Joseph and His Family." Also, five members performed in the Annual Lessons and Carols

The KDs held a workshop for Project Excellence, a program designed to improve the chapter. They also improved relations with the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity by having a mixer with them. The pledges held a successful night at the Silver Fox on Dec. 5.

During the hectic week of finals, the Kappa Delta's will find time for their annual gag gifts party and making "sunshine bags" for the Children's Hospital in Richmond, Va. Also, the pledges will be taking their first exams-the

ZETA TAU ALPHA

After a relaxing Thanks-giving break that was enjoyed by all, the Zetas are already back into the swing of things here at HPC. One night the Zetas held a craft-making sesion with several of their alumnae. It was chance for bast, present, and future sisters to get together and join in the holiday spirit by making small Christmas decorations.

As far as intramurals are concerned, this year is continuing to being success to the Zeta Volleyball teams. After a great finish last year, the teams hope the championship will bring a victory.

Well, it looks like finals are too close for comfort. It's time to buckle down and hit the books. On behalf of the Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority, Good Luck Everyone!

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

On Nov. 22, Lambda Chi Alpha welcomed seven new brothers into its fraternity. They are: Jeff Briggs, Jack Fetner, Danny Hogue, Kevi Markham, George Moronese, Chris Shuping, and Barry Wit-

On Dec. 8, the 4th Annual Lambda Chi Associate Members vs Pika Pledges football game was played. The A.M.'s kept up the tradition by winning the game 28-0 for the third consecutive year. Great job guys!!

To our disappointment our pool mixer with the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority on Dec. 7 was cancelled until next semester, but a number of Lambda Chis and Zetas got together, informally, that night at Londonderry Apartments to party. Everyone had a great time until it was broken up by the police. Thanks to Angelo Stewart for the use of his apartment.

Everyone is looking forward to "Gag Gifts" this Wednesday, Dec. 11 at Country Roads.

This Friday, Dec. 13 will be the last 'Day at Country Roads' this semester, so come out and party. Also, the 13th is our Christmas Dance which will be held at the Hilton in Greensboro. Have a good Break!!

DELTA SIGMA PHI

The Delta Sigs would like to congratulate the Pikas on a very good soccer game on Dec. 4. Also, for once, no one wrecked a car or got arrested over break. The Sigs are hard at work on some new projects for next semester. We're all looking forward to the Pledge so. Brother football game with a Christmas Dance following. The Sigs wish everyone Good Luck on their finals, a Merry Christmas and a hell-raising break!!

THETA CHI

The Brothers prevailed once again over our pledges in our Brother/Pledge football game. Another re-match is schedueld for the spring semester.

Our little sister program has recently been strengthened with the addition of six new little sisters. They are Liz Derekson (Phi Mu), Bonnie Palmer (Phi Mu), Bonnie Hannah (Phi Mu), Brond "Brich" Hovis (Kappa Delta), Debbie "Snacks" Meckfessel (Independent) and Linda Carroll (Independent).

This year's New Year's Dance is set for Jan. 17 at the Howard Johnson with many unexpected surprises.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

The Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity delievered a little holiday spirit to a needy family in High Point this fall.

On Monday, Nov. 25, the Pikes donated a turkey dinner with all the trimmings. Mike Lemmo, president of Pi Kappa Alpha, said, "the feast consisted of a twenty-pound turkey with stuffing, apple sauce, sweet potatoes, rolls, cranberries, pumpkin pie, and a gallon of milk."

"It made me feel good to see the happy faces of the family that received the meal," said Lemmo. "It also made me realize how fortunate we all arehere at High Point (College)."

"This is the fourth year in a row we've done this," said Tom Hahn, community service chairmen for Pi Kappa Alpha. Hahn stressed that it was important for a fraternity to be involved in their community.

To The Kappa Delta Sisters:

We would like to tell you that we love you all very much and appreciate everything that you have done for us this semester. We are all so proud to be KDs. We wish you all a very Merry Christmas.

SGA Tests Food Service. Plans Future

Deena McMurtry Editor

At a recent Student Go vernment Association meeting on Dec. 4 many issues were presented that began the ground work for future happenings at High Point College.

One of the main topics of conversation was of food services at HPC. Mike Lernmo, head of the food services committee, commented humo rously, "All I want for Christmas is a new food service plam."

Lemmo told those in at tendance at the SGA meeting of the trip that he, Deam Al Sistrunk, Ram Miller, Jeannie Davis, Bunny Wagner and Bob Shenigo took to the UNC-G cafeteria the week before Thanksgiving. Lemmo explained that the college students were fed top quality three times a day, every day, but they are still paying for those meals.

According to the current Academic Bulletin, "Students living on campus are required to board on campus." Some students expressed that this rule, as well, may need to be changed along with the new food service plan.

Another topic of conversation was an idea to boost morale at HPC basketball games by awarding $25 to the organization that shows the most enthusiasm and spirit for the team. The prize will be presented to the winning organization during half-time at the following game.

Also, students were reminded of a new event that President Martinson wants made a tradition at HPC -- The Presidental Study Break. On Dec. 17, from 8 to 10:30 p.m.,

"HOLD YOUR TRAY REAL SILL AND I BET HE CAN GET YOUR LUNCH TO JUNEAR HAR OVER " meats, and homenade pastries. A choice of a three entree line, a fast food lime, a dietetic line or a vegetarian line was given to the UNC-G students.

Lemmo commented that the food was very good and that HPC had plans to take on the same type of food service which is provided by the ARA Company.

Dean Sistrunk explained that in taking on such a food service the size of the college is a consideration

"There is a considerable difference in what can be served because UNC-G serves 30,000 and HPC only serves 1,500," said Sistrunk, "However, we can definitely anticipate some changes for next semester -

Kevin Connolly, chair man of Student Union, prop-sed that some type of mealpla in be devised. Connolly explained that many students do not eat students are invited to come as they are and enjoy eats at the Andrews House. So far, approximately 40 pounds of M&M's have been ordered for the study break.

"It's an informal kind of thing to help students get more acquainted with president," said Sistrunk.

On the business side of the meeting, SGA took $5000 out of their contingency fund and put it into the general fund, 'so that it can be allocated whenever we feel it necessary," according to Phil

Connolly also explained that a new sound system for approximately $4,500 was being purchased to be used at HPC events, Instead of hiring an outside disc jockey, which runs close to $300, students will be trained to operate the new equipment.

Panel Discusses Obscenity Law

Anthony Billings Assistant Editor

"This violates the First Amendment clearly," said Calvin Sneed, WGHP-TV news anchor, about the new North Carolina Obscenities

A Nov. 20 news conference sponsored by the High Point College chapter of the Society Collegiate Journalists brought together a panel of three professionals in the media, a First Amendment authority, and a North Carolina state representative. The topic of discussion was the new Obscenities Law, which took affect Oct. I.

The Reverend Stephen Wood, a state representative from High Point, said he did not believe that the new law was a "vehicle for censorship."

"I am neither a bookburner, nor the son of a bookburner." said Wood, defending the law he supported in the 1985 session.

Wood did state, however, that he believes and supports the statement, "The government that governs bests governs least."

Dr. Mark Chilcoat, of HPC, represented Dr. Thomas Tedford, a professor at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and an authority on the First Amendment. Chilcoat related the questions he asked Tedford and the answers Tedford gave. Chilcoat gave, as part of his representation of Tedford, a short lesson on the new law and its predecessors.

Chilcoat stated that the new law was in two parts. The first part pertains directly to adults and the banning of the use of "obscene material" by them. The second part deals solely with the child pornography issue and the possibility of "contributing to the delinquency of minors.'

The second part was actually a part of the laws enacted in 1971 and 1973. This year the law was amended to affect adults as well.

The law gives the responsibility of determining if something is actually obscene or not to the local authorities. But many stores have already taken many films off their shelves that they fear could be used as evidence against them. according to Chilcoat.

Chilcoat said, "One wellknown lawyer in North Carolina called the law 'an incredibly awful law. But it's going to be with us for a long, long time.' "

Chilcoat quoted Tedford as saying that "there is little likelihood that this law will be repealed any time soon unless the citizens speak out soon."

Even education will be affected by the law, according to Chilcoat. "Educators must now censor everything they teach," said Chilcoact. Sex education in public schools will be sharply affected, as will literature courses. Chilcoat.

Near the end of his position statement, Chilcoat gave his own opinion of the law in sav-'This is one teacher who does not want to live in a Jerry Falwell concentration camp.

Speaking as a journalist, Calvin Sneed said, "This law applies to everything I do."

Sneed supported the law when he said, "Nobody wants little kids to be exposed to this stuff (pornography). In that, this is a good law," he said. "But everything else is in violation of our constitutional rights."

Sneed said that the new law scared him. He believes, he said, that the potential was there for a police state.

"You can view X-rated films in your home," Sneed said. "You just can't buy them in North Carolina.

John Nesbit, producer of WFMY-TV's 'Good Morning Show,' ridiculed both the public and the media.

"If this law is so terrible, how did we get to the point to let our elected legislators pass it?" he said.

"We failed in the news media to tell the public about it before it was too late," Nesbit said.

Van King, associate editor of the Greensboro News and Record, agreed with Nesbit. "The media did a terrible job of covering this story," King said. "We did not tell the public about it soon enough to stop it 1

In answer to one question, Sneed said that you could pick any film available on the shelves of video rental and retail sales stores. "You run the risk yourself of having Vice come in and arrest you.' said Sneed.

Part of the reason the law is being treated as a felony offense is "probably to address child pornography," according to Wood.

In closing statements. Chilcoat said that "If you get a movie in the mail, it's not illegal. If you rip off the wrapper, it's a felony.

HPC Group Plans Trip to Costa Rica

Lora Songster Features Editor

While most of us are donning party hats, playing with noisemakers, and celebrating the upcoming year, Ben Curry, Ron Ramke and approximately ten High Point College students will be arriving in San Jose, Costa Rica, on New Year's Eve.

The team of college students, under the leadership of Curry, who initiated the program, will be working side by side with Costa Rican college students. They will be helping to construct, paint and repair the Central Rural Youth Camp near Quesada, Costa Rica. The project is a twoweek volunteer effort from Dec. 31 to Jan. 14. This takes two weeks of the vacation of the participants. Curry says, am excited about the response that I have gotten, and I feel good about this first volunteer effort."

Base costs for the individual is $600. Scholarships have been made available through the allotment of $2,000 from the Student Government Association. An additional $2,000 for building supplies to be used in Costa Rica was needed. Donations for this purpose were collected by Curry through channels outside the HPC community.

The students will be responsible for buying their groceries and preparing their own meals while they are in Costa Rica. They also plan a sightseeing trip to the National Museum and various Costa Rican market places.

Senior Kelly Brisentine said. "I look forward to experiencthe Latin-American culture and testing my Spanish skills."

Senior Randy Foster stated, "I am truly excited about the opportunity to go to Costa Rica and learn about another culture. It should be a great experience."

One to three college credits may be awarded to the students in Spanish, sociology, political science or religion by permission of the departmental chair and the Dean of the College.

"I think it is a good chance to earn college credits while being introduced to a different culture and helping others,' said Phil Key, a senior.

Panthers Enter Season With Height, Youth

The HPC Men's Basketball team is entering the 1985-86 season with 5'8 Mike Miller as the only guard on the team with College experience. The two forwards, 6'8 Hughd Celston and 6'8 Jeff Allen, glid not play last year. Gelston was ineligible the second half of last year, and Allen sat out of school for the year.

Jim Hoffman, 6'8 center, is the only returning starter from last year's club, and the team's only senior. Hoffman averaged 6.7 points and 2.5 rebounds per game last year. For the Panthers, he had a slow start last year, but during the last third of the season came on strong as an inside man.

Hoffman will get some competition for the center job this year from 6'10 Sophomore Terry Shackleford, who was ineligible last year after transferring from North Carolina State.

On the roster, the Panthers will have five Freshmen, three Sophomores, and five Juniors. Freshmen Tony Bolden, 6'3; Willie Walker, 6'4; Chris Windlan, 6'2; Eric Trumpower, 6'4; and Lane Odon, 5'10, will be battling for the other guard position next to Miller.

Ron Telleysh, 6'6, and Andy Young, 6'3, both Juniors, will be trying to earn a starting spot at forward.

Head Coach Jerry Steele, who recorded 350 career victories on the college level, has guided the Panthers to 139 victories over the last eight years.

Panthers Defeat Elon, Embarrassed by A-C

Joe Hutchins Staff Writer

The High Point College women's basketball season for 1985-1986 is off to a good start after two games, according to HPC head coach Debbie Trogdon.

The Lady Panthers faced the women of Elon College at High Point on Monday, Nov. 25. This was the first game for the women of HPC, and they were victorious. Elon was leading at the half 36-28, but in the second half HPC put great pressure on the ball and, according to Coach Trogdon, the defensive play of HPC won the game for them. The final score was High Point 59. Elon 53. Anita Staton, a 5'5" sophomore from Marshville, North Carolina, was the leading scorer for HPC with 18 points.

The Lady Panthers traveled to Wilson, North Carolina, to face Atlantic-Christian Col-lege, on Monday, Dec. 2. This was the second regular season game for the women of HPC. They played a good first half and made Atlantic-Christian change their tempo and style of play.

According to Trogdon, Atlantic-Christian plays a runand-gun type of game, and the Lady Panthers made them slow the ball down and set up their offense. The women of Atlantic-Christian were also bad ball-handlers, according to Trogdon, and HPC took advantage of the weakness.

The halftime score was 29-27 in favor of HPC. In the second half the defensive pressure of HPC began to weaken because the Lady Panthers were not playing with a full deck. Two starters, Angie Green, a 5'7" junior from Greensboro, and Gigi McPherson, a 5'10" senior from Chadbourn, North Carolina, were playing injured. HPC not being 100% healthy, and committing too many fouls late in the second half helped Atlantic-Christan regain the tempo of the game. Atlantic-Christian went on to defeat HPC by a score of 83-65.

Anita Staton was the leading scorer for HPC with 16 points.

Coach According to Trogdon, it is difficult for a team to play hard throughout an entire game when they are not totally healthy. Coach Trogdon said, "No doubt we will beat them next time, as long as we are healthy."

Ooach Trogdon believes her team's strong point is going to be defense. The team runs a full court trapping press called "The Gut." The defense is very difficult to operate effectively, because the players are constantly running. It is also a very difficult press to break when it is managed correctly. Once the Lady Panthers get the press perfected, they will shut down a great deal of their opponents.

Trogdon has one strategy that is unique in the world o college basketball. She never starts her first five players Her reasoning behind this strategy is to let her first five players see what types of offenses and defensives their opponents are utilizing. The second five usually play the first two to six minutes of the first half, according to the tempo of the game, while Coach Trogdon talks over her strategy with her first five players

In the Elon game, the second five played the first six minutes, and there was only a two-point difference in the score. The second five also played the first five minutes of the Atlantic-Christian game, and there was only a one-point difference in the score when the first came into the game. Coach Trogdon believes in substituting a great deal and always having fresh players on Trogdon feels the Lady Panthers have a great deal of depth, and according to her, the second five are "almost" as good as the first five. She fells the team is now in the process of gaining valuable experience, and after Christmas they will be totally ready to play both offense and defense effectively.

Pikas, Zetas Take Soccer

Staff Writer

The men's and women's intramural soccer season has come to an end, and women's volleyball will be completed before Christmas break, according to the women's intramural director, Anna Lopez.

In men's intramural soccer the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity finished in first place, the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity finished second, the Delta Sigma Phi's in third, and Team "X" finished fourth (these standings are based on regular season play and do not include tournament play).

The women's intramural soccer season ended with the top four teams, Zeta (1), Alpha Gam's, KD's, and Independents going into a single elimination tournament. The Zeta's and the KD's went into the championship game, and the Zeta's won the game and were named the women's intramural soccer champions of 1985.

The women's intramural volleyball season is scheduled to end sometime this week. There are 13 teams involved in the women's intramural volleyball program, and the competition is very fierce, according to Lopez.

The men's intramural volleyball round-robbin tournament began on Monday, Dec. 2, and is scheduled to end sometime this week. There will be no championship play-off held. Each team will play each other once, and the team with the best record will be the men's intramural volleyball champions. There are nine teams involved in the men's volleyball round-robin tournament, and they are as follows: Team "X", Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha(A), GUTS, SIGS, Pi Kippa Alpha, Baker's Furniture Company, Lambda Chi Alpha(B), and the PIKES.

Lambda Chi Wins 3rd Straight; 28-0

Even though he is known for his defense on the soccer field for High Point College, Danny Hogue was used on offense Sunday by the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity and responded with three touchdowns, as the Lamdba Chi's Associate Members defeated the Pi Kappa Alpha Pledges

For the Lambda Chi's it was their third straight victory in the annual AM-Pledge football game. The Lambda Chi's won 20-8 in 1983 and 14-8 last year. The Pikas took the '82 game 7-0.

With the exception of two passes from Lambda Chi quarterback Ernic Donaldson to Hogue, the game was mainly a defensive battle. Doug Brandon recovered a fumble at midfield and took it in for a touchdown in the first half. and Hogue fell on the ball in the end zone after the Pika punt returner misplayed a third quarter punt. The Lambda Chi's first score came when Pika quarterback Dale Cox was sacked in the end zone by George Moronese and Frank Shumate on the third play of the game.

Food Drive
For Needy

A canned food drive will be conducted by the Interfraternity and Panhellenic (Sorority) Councils of High Point College on Saturday, December 14, 1985, from 10:00 a.m. until 12 noon. Members of the four national fraternities -- Delta Sigma Phi, Lambda Chi Alph, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Theta Chi -- and the four national sororities -- Alpha Gamma Delta, Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, and Zeta Tau Alpha -- will be going into the neighborhoods collecting canned food donations as a project for the Knights of Columbus. The memners of the eight groups will be wearing their Greek letters as identification.

Please respond generously to their appeal and support this worthwhile project which will provide food for needy families in High Point.
